MILITARY PREPARATIONS.

Mindful of all contingencies, military prep- ations are still being hastened. Gen. Sheri- n has, since his arrival, had several inter- ws with the President, the Secretary of ar and Gen. Sherman. To-night Gen. Sher- n dined with Gen. Sherman. The consul- ions held to-day between the distinguished litary officials of the Government had spe- l reference to the most expeditious and ef- tive method of organizing the ny, and the selection of its base operations. There is a difference opinion in regard to the best point of de- rture for the transports. New Orleans has e advantage of contiguity to the island, and undant facilities for storage for military sup- ies. New York possesses greater means transportation, being the principal centre of e steam carrying trade of the United States; t during the winter season the passage from w York to Havana is delayed and en- ngered by tempestuous weather, while ad- rse weather is almost unknown in the gulf. patrolling fleet in the Florida channel ould afford sufficient protection to trans- rts starting from New Orleans, while on e long voyage from New York they would in constant jeopardy of being overtaken by me fast sailing cruiser.

The opinion of these officers is that war ming so unexpectedly as would be the case the present negotiations are broken off, the overnment would be compelled to have an vading army at the earliest possible moment, olunteers must always be the main defense the nation; but to properly organize a vol- teer army for a foreign war would be a labor months, notwithstanding the experience of e late war.

It is, therefore, suggested as a matter of ex- dition, to issue a call for volunteers not less an 75,000; a portion of which to be imme- ately dispatched to the frontier to garrison e various posts in the Indian country, the gulars now occupying those posts would be ansferred east to rendezvous, in all probabil- y, at New Orleans, at which point, in the inion of Gen. Sherman, the whole avaia- e regular force could be concentrated d ready to move within the space fifty days. The remainder of the volunteer rce could be organized and equipped to fol- w the regulars. It is held by these officers at it would be the part of wisdom and fore- ght to organize at the beginning an army of fficient size to prosecute the campaign vig rously and to an immediate and victorious nd. Their opinion is that the strongest force of panish soldiery and Cuban voluneers whiah an be mustered in the island will not number ,000 men, badly officered and poorly armed. d for this reason, even as an army of in- asion, that think that an equal number on ur side, hith our efficient officers and men, ur improved arms and artillery, would be ntirely sufficient to accomplish decisive re- ults. The impression is that four battles ould settle the contest in the field, and that he siege and capitulation of Havana would e the most difficult part of the campaign t is estimated that by the accumulation of upplies in sufficient quantities, the expedi- ion could be provisioned for at least six nonths, which would obviate the necessity of lepending solely upod uninterrupted commu- ication between Cuba and the base of upplies.

Senator Cameron arrived to-night, and will mmediately place himself in communication with the President and Secretary of State in eference to the important business which will ome before him as Chairman of the Commit- ee on Former Relations next week.

Only a Rumor.

There is a rumor to-night that Spain has ac eeded to our demands, but this cannot be raced to any reliable source.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

The report of the Secretary of the Interior comprises, besides various other matters, the annual statistical reports of all railroads in which the government is interested. The Secretary also refers to the Yellowstone National Park, urging Congress to take early steps to protect this park from the vandalism of visitors, and says its boundaries should be properly surveyed and located, as many persons desire to settle upon lands contiguous thereto.

DEATH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 28, 1873.—J. M. Morris, Executive Clerk of the United States Senate, and formerly editor of the Charleston Republican and Chronicle, of this city, died at his residence here last night, of consumption, in the 37th year of his age.

Death of Ex-Senator Richard Yates.

ST. LOUIS, November, 27.—Ex-United States Senator Richard Yates, of Illinois, died suddenly at Barnum's Hotel, at nine o'clock to-night. Mr. Yates had been to Fulton, Ark., as United States Commissioner to examine the lower end of the Cairo and Fulton Railroad, and returned here last week. He had since been quite feeble, and yesterday was very sick. He revived to-day, however, and this evening, while busying himself with preparations for starting home to-morrow, he suddenly fell backwards, and died in five minutes. His family have been advised and are expected here to-morrow.

BOMBARDMENT OF CARTAGENA—THE CITY ABOUT READY TO SURRENDER.

MADRID, November 27.—Cartagena was bombarded eight hours yesterday by the land batteries. The town and man-of-war Mendez nunez replied with vigor. The outlying fort, Don Julian, was silenced by the fire of the besiegers. It is reported that its commandant and several other officers were killed. The insurgent fleet in harbor got up steam to-day, for what purpose has not yet been developed. The rebel leaders, through the admirals of the foreign squadrons, have requested a truce of two hours. It is believed propositions for the surrender of the city will soon be made.

ARMY CRIPPLED BY DISEASE.

BAYONNE, November 28.—The Carlists report that typhus and small-pox prevail to to such an extent in General Morionese's army that it is unable to make any offensive movement.

THE FIGHTING AT CARTAGENA.

MADRID, November 28.—During the two hours' truce at Cartagena, yesterday, the Italian Admiral sent a vessel to the city, which returned with a number of non-combatants. At the close of the truce, firing was resumed by both sides, and continues to-day. The insurgents are making a desperate defense.

THE BLACK FLAG FLOATING OVER CARTAGENA.

LONDON, November 29, 6 A. M.—Special dispatches to the Times and Standard give the particulars of the bombardment of Cartagena on Wednesday. The arsenal and barracks were the chief marks of the besiegers' artillery, but the cathedral and hospital were also struck. On Friday the theatres, the Protestant church and two entire streets were destroyed and two hundred persons killed and wounded within the city. The insurgents have raised the black flag on the forts. At last accounts the fire around the city was subsiding. The loss of the besiegers has been exceedingly small. Officers of the foreign squadrons succeeded in obtaining an armistice of four hours on Friday night.

FIRE RECORD.

A Block Destroyed in Salem, O.

Special Dispatch to the Commercial.

SALEM, O., November 27, 1873.—A fire broke out about two o'clock this morning in the three story brick block on Main street, owned by Lease, Vernon & Young. The fire was first discovered in the dry goods store of L. B. Lockard, which was entirely consumed, with all the dry goods, books, &c. Nothing saved. His loss is about $16,000; insured for $8,000, $2,000 of it in the Phoenix Company. Lease Bros. confectionary and bakery was partly burned. Loss about $1,700; insured in the Rechland Mutual for $1,500. Gaily's shoe store and J. Ask's furniture room burnt. Loss not ascertained, but probably not heavy, as a great part of the goods were saved. The second and third floors of the block were in use as a lodge of the Knights of Pythias, offices, &c., and all destroyed. Loss on the building about $10,000, about covered by insurance in the Columbiana Mutual, Ashland Mutual and other companies.

Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, November 27.—The sash factory and planing mill of Wilson & Son was burned this morning. Loss $40,000; insurance $20,000.

Bishop R. S. Foster, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, arrived yesterday from Liverpool. He will remain a few days in this city before leaving for his future home in Cincinnati.

THE "RING" TRIALS.

Ingersal having beea convicted, it is reported that Conan, Norton and Genet, the other three Court Commissioners will be brought up for trial at the next term. which begins on Monday, when, it is probable Judge Ingraham will preside. Counsel for Ingersall and Farrington late this afternoon filed an application for a stay of proceedings.

The Sheriff to-day stated that Tweed would be shortly taken to the Penitentiary at Blackwell's Island.

NON-UNION MEN BEATEN.

Several members of the Plasterers' Union to-day entered a building in Brooklyn where non-society men were working and beat them severely. One man is believed to be fatally injured. No arrests.

SPECIE PAYMENTS.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to-day, after a long debate, the majority report of the Committee on specie payments, which calls on the Government to resume specie payments, was voted down. The meeting then adjourned 'till next Tuesday, without taking a vote on the minority report, which recommends that the National Banks of this city shall have power to establish a uniform rate of discount, and that Congress shall authorize the issue of $100,000,000 of United States currency bonds, convertible into legal tenders.

PROPOSITION OF HOWES & MACY ACCEPTED.

At a meeting of creditors of Howes & Macy to-night, it was resolved to accept the proposition of the firm of paying sixty-five per cent to the creditors, in the following manner: Forty per cent. on the 1st of January, ten per cent. on the 1st of March, the remaining fifteen per cent. during the remainder of the year, and that the same be accepted by the creditors as a full payment of all claims.

UNFAVORABLE NEWS AS TO THE NEGOTIATIONS WITH SPAIN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 27.—It is stated, on what is believed to be good authority, that our government has extended the time for a definite reply from Spain to the demand of our government, and it can be said, coming from official source, that negotiations are still in progress, but affairs are in such a condition that not even an intimation can be given of their character. There is reason for saying with certainty that the prospect is not so favorable for an adjustment of the Virginius difficulty as it was several days ago. There were grounds for believing that the report that the Spanish Cabinet had agreed to surrender that vessel was predicated mainly on professions of amity and an expression of willingness on the part of the Castelar Cabinet to do everything compatible with honor in satisfaction of the wishes of the United States, and also from the friendly assurances of Admiral Polo, the Spanish Minister. and his action in the premises. This govenment yesterday and to-day, was in receipt of dispatches from Madrid of an elaborate character, giving the result of interviews between Mr. Sickles and the Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs, on the points in controversy not yet concluded, nor from present indications is it probable the matter will soon be terminated by negotiation, although it is hoped there will be something definite to lay before Congress on the day the Presidential message shall be transmitted to that body. As the negotiation is still pending, there can be no truth in the report freely circulated today that Minister Sickles had left Madrid for Paris. Another report prevailed that the Virginius had been scuttled in the port of Havana. Inquiry at official sources to-night failed to confirm its truth.

GRANT AND FISH IN CONSULTATION.

The President, this morning, called at the residence of Secretary Fish, with whom he had a consultation on the pending negotiations.

ACTIVITY AT BROOKLYN NAVY YARD—THE ARAPILES.

NEW YORK, November 27.—The greatest activity prevaied in all departments of the Brooklyn navy yard to-day. The last iron plate was put upon the Spanish sloop-of-war Arapiles, this afternoon, but she cannot get her guns and ammunition aboard before the meeting of Congress.

AN ADMONITION FROM CUBA LIBRE.

NEW YORK, November 28.—M. Quesada and Carlos Del Castello publish a card, stating that they are only representatives of the republican government of Cuba abroad, and that the collection of funds for suffering Cubans is without their authority, and against commands of their government, and condemning all attempts to enlist men, being in direct violation of the laws of the land.

THE CUBAN LEAGUE.

General Martin McMahon was elected President of Cuban League last evening. Vice-President Wilson who had been chosen President, sent word that while sympathizing with Cuba, his duties would not permit him to accept the honor. Petitions are to be put in circulation for signatures, asking Congress to grant Cuba beligerant rights.

BULLETIN FROM BUTCHER BURRIEL.

A Havana letter says: General Burriel has issued circulars to the Lieutenant-Governors and Captains of the Eastern departments, calling on them to aid in crushing the rebellion by arresting all persons suspected of complicity with the insurgents, who will soon, he says, with all help cut off by sea and land, perish like wild beasts, as they deserve.

SPANISH TREACHERY.

It was announced that a private letter from Santiago stated that the twenty men who embraced Catholic faith, did so on condition that their lives should be spared. They were however, shot.

SPANIARDS IN CUBA WILL NOT ALLOW REPARATION TO BE MADE.

NEW YORK, November 28.—A letter from Havana says the people there would refuse to allow any order from Madrid to deliver up the Virginius, or make other reparation for her seizure and the execution of her crew to be carried out.

THE SITUATION MORE HOPEFUL.

WASHINGTON, November 28.—The Cabinet was in session two hours and a half to-day giving earnest attention to the question pending between the United States and Spain. It was remarked by a Cabinet officer after adjournment that the business was in such condition that a single telegram on either side might change the whole course of proceedings. To-night it can be confidentially said the question has assumed a more favorable aspect than it bore this morning, and that there are strong reasons for expecting results entirely satisfactory; and it can be added, on the same competent authority, that although nothing has as yet been reduced to precise terms, the situation is very hopeful.

SHERMAN ON THE ARMY AND NAVY.

WASHINGTON, November 28.—At the celebration of veterans of 1812, last night, Gen. Sherman responded to the toast, "the army and navy," saying nine-tenths of the present army had seen service in the war of the rebellion, most of them being veterans of from eight to twenty battles. Our army is much too small, but should occasion arise, a war with Spain or other powers, they could fill the ranks by a blast of the trumpet, as it were, and put a large force in the field. The General spoke in the highest terms of the officers and men of the navy.

PREPARING THE BIG GUNS FOR SERVICE.

FORTRESS MONROE, November 28.—Twenty mechanics arrived here this morning for duty in the advance machine shop, to work on the fifteen-inch gun-carriages now being constructed. Two machinists will leave to-morrow morning for Key West, and two for Charleston, to put the guns and carriages at those points in thorough working order.

CRIMES.

An Old Farmer Cuts his Throat.

Special Dispatch to the Commercial.

FREDERICKTOWN, OHIO, November 27, 1873.

An old man by the name of William Brown, living about three miles from here, committed suicide this morning at half-past six o'clock, by cutting his throat with a razor. Cause unknown.

Suicide of Andy Johnson's Former Private Secretary.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 27.—Col. Robt. Morrow, paymaster of one of the Arizona departments of the army, committed suicide in his room at the Occidental hotel with a dragoon revolver. He fired three shots, and the last time put the muzzle of the pistol in his mouth and blew his brains out. Morrow formerly was Private Secretary of President Johnson. No cause is known for the suicide.

Execution Indefinitely Postponed.

ST. LOUIS, November 27.—The execution of John Fefee and George Williams, which was to have taken place at Pickneyville, Ill., tomorrow, for the murder of William Watson, last September, has been indefinitely postponed.

Tragic end of a Family Feud in Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, November 27.—A special to the Courier-Journal from Louisville, Ky., gives the following particulars of a tragedy which occurred at Harrodsburg on Thursday evening. The trial of a lawsuit in which P. B. Thompson, Sr., was the principal on one side, and Theodore Daviess, Sr, on the other, was in progress, and each principal was attended during the whole trial by his sons, fully armed. At the conclusion of the testimony, while the lawyers were preparing the instructions preparatory to commencing the argument, a son of Thompson and a son of Daviess moved toward the door. They were followed by all the others, and in a moment firing commenced, by which party it is not known. Many shots were fired, and Theodore Daviess, Sr., and his son Larue were instantly killed, and Theodore Daviess, Jr., was mortally wounded, and has since died. P. B. Thompson, Sr., and his two sons P. B., Jr., and J. B., Jr., were slightly wounded. Caldwell Daviess escaped unhurt.

SOUTH BEND, IND., November 28.—A Polander named John Czalkesky, last night, in a drunken spree, shot another named Martin Sesse, in the head, instantly killing him.

Sentenced for Abusing Sailors.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Nov. 28.—In the United States Court, to-day, Robert K. Clarke, captain of the ship Sunrise, was sentenced, on conviction of cruel punishment of seamen, to fourteen months' imprisonment in the County Jail, and a fine of $1,000. Frank Harris, his first mate, was sentenced to the State prison for four years, and Dennis Maloney, second mate, to sixty days in the County Jail.

A Desperado Shot—A Woman Shows a Little Boy How It was Done.

EVANSVILLE, IND., November 28.—William Williams, ex-sheriff of Warwick county, shot and killed William Thornberg, a desperado, who drew a pistol to resist arrest, at Booneville, yesterday.

Mrs. Khohd, a German woman, while showing how it was done, shot and killed Jacob Buttiger, three years old.

Cleveland's Last Murder.

CLEVELAND, November 28.—The coroner's jury held an inquest on the body of Thomas Gannon, yesterday, and returned a verdict that he came to his death by violence at the hands of Alonzo Ellis.

A Defaulter—Perhaps.

COLUMBUS, O., November 28.—Charles J. Hess, general agent of the Protection Life Insurance Company of Chicago, against whom suit has been brought to recover about $12,000 of the company's money, in an interview this evening, states that he sent in his resignation two days ago, to take effect December first. He does not deny having money of the Company in his possession but says that the Protection has collected the amouns of several death losses in this State, and now refuses to pay over the money so collected to the claimants. In consequence suits have been brought against the Company at Portsmouth, Scioto county, and writs have been served upon him by the sheriff, directing him to pay no moneys belonging to the county until such suits have been determined. The public now have both sides of the story.

Woman Shot in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, November 27.—A woman named Thompson was shot and probably fatally injured at the Circle House, at two o'clock this morning. by a man named Owen T. Porter. The latter had a dispute with the clerk of the house, and fired at him, but missing the clerk, shot the woman.

Capture of a Mexican Bandit.

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS, November 27.—Alberto Garcia, Chief of the Mexican Bandits, who robbed the store of Mr. Schurbert, at Concepcion, Texas, some days ago, of about $30,000 in cash and arms and other goods, and fled to Mexico, has been captured by the authorities, brought to Matamoras, and is held for extradition. This arrest has been made with more promptness than any previous one for years.

Attempted Jail Delivery in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., November 28.—On Tuesday last, the prisoners in the Clarksville jail overpowered the guards and took possession of their arms. The alarm was given before they got out, and the citizens of the town surrounded the jail. One of the prisoners, Sid Wallace, under sentence to be hung, on the 22d of next month, fired a double barrel shotgun at two citizens in the street, severely if not fatally wounding both. The citizens then took possession of the first floor of the jail, put five kegs of powder in it, laid a train for some distance, and notified the prisoners that unless they surrendered in thirty minutes, they would blow up the building. After a little parley, they surrendered, throwing the arms out at the window. As one of the guns struck the ground, it went off, slightly wounding three persons, Wallace and another of the prisoners was brought here last night and lodged in the penitentiary. He will be taken out and hanged next month. He has killed quite a number of men, among them the late Hon. Elisha Meers, Circuit Judge, and is the most desperate character in that section of country. Two brothers were in jail with him at the time, and are under indictments that will send them to the penitentiary.

PHILADELPHIA, November 28.—The Union Banking Company, which suspended during the panic, has resumed business with its capital increased to $700,000.

James Mason has been appointed Register in Jay Cooke & Co's. bankruptcy case. Judge Cadwallader issued an order giving instructions to the Receiver to have the bankrupts forth with account with him for all their and any or either of their property, real or personal, moneys, rights, credits and effects, accounts to be taken from the commencement of proceedings on the 25th of September last, and from such earlier period or periods, if any, as may, as to any item or items, be necessary.

Thanksgiving at West Newton.

Special Dispatch to the Commercial.

WEST NEWTON, PA., November 27, 1873.

Thanksgiving was very generally observed here. In the evening Capt. C. C. Markle gave a select party, which was attended by one hundred and fifty guests, friends from Mt. Pleasant, Broadford and this place. The occasion was a very enjoyable one, and reflects great credit upon the Captain and his estimable lady.

Don't Want It.

MILWAUKEE, November, 28.—Senator Timothy O. Howe authorizes the statement that he is not a candidate for the Chief-Justiceship, and could not accept if appointed.

Result of Explosive Oil—Fire in Twenty-first Ward—One Dwelling Destroyed.

About five o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in a dwelling house occupied by Phillip Worst, located in Collin's Park. The engines were called out, but the house was inaccessable, and the interior of the building was entirely destroyed. The fire was caused by an attemp to kindle a fire in the kitchen stove with petroleum oil.

To avoid conflagrations and explosions use Elaine, the Family Safeguard Oil, it will not explode, and gives a brilliant light. Sold everywhere.

NEWS SUMMARY.

BY TELEGRAPH.

The legal tenders outstanding amount to $866,230,018.

The Hoosac tunnel was opened from end to end on Thursday.

Many of the mills in the New England States are resuming operations.

The steamship Abyssinia, from Liverpool arrived at New York on Thursday.

D. A. McDonald has been elected Postmaster-General of Canada by acclamation.

A subscription has been started in St. Louis for the family of Captain Fry, of the Virginius.

The police of Baltimore have just completed a census of that city, showing a population of 302,893.

Taking counsel of wisdom, the Chicago Typographical Union has reduced the prices of composition.

B. R. Sulgrove, a well known journalist, was seriously hurt by falling from the State House steps, in Indianapolis, on the 27th.

A dispatch from Eureka, Nevada, states that a volcano has broken out in the Pinto mountains, ten miles from that place. Dense volumes of smoke are issuing from the crater.

Thanksgiving day was more generally observed, yesterday, than ever before. In all the principal cities business was almost entirely suspended, and services were held in all the churches.

ON THANKSGIVING day the police made two raids upon cock-pits, near Glennwood grove, and arrested eighteen men, capturing also a number of chickens. The men were fined ten dollars each, and costs.

THREE men named respectively Manning, Snyder, and Marshall were arrested in Allegheny yesterday morning for the larceny of fish from the store of William Morrell in Allegheny city. The parties are held for a hearing.

Report made by James A. Godman, to the late Auditor Williams, on the financial condition of the Treasurer and Auditor's offices of Butler county, O., shows that the amount overdrawn by Auditor Schmidt is $10,407. The report also says that every officer whose accounts he has been able to make up, covering a period of three and half years, has proved to be a defaulter. The aggregate of the defalcations is $22,439, besides $2,380 unlawfully paid to ex-Treasurer Lindley.

Decision in the Credit Mobilier Cases at Hartford.

HARTFORD, CONN., November 28.—The important Credit Mobilier suit, which was tried in this city last October, has been decided by United States Judges Hunt and Shipman, and the opinion was filed in the United States District court of this city, to-day. The motion of the defendants' counsel to dismiss the bill involving the question of jurisdiction was decided in favor of the government. On the second point, the Court sustains the demurrer and dismisses the bill as to the parties who demurred. The ground of the demurrer is that the damage to the government by the Credit Mobilier frauds is too remote to be reached by the process pursued, or by any other, and that the government has at present no pecuniary interest to be reached by the bill. The court takes the view that there is no trust anywhere raised in behalf of the government to be protected. The motion to dissolve the injunction is granted. It is not unlikely that the matter may go to the Supreme Court, though there is not much probability of a reversal.

Lecture and Exhibition at Blairsville, Pa.

(Special Dispatch to the Commercial.)

BLAIRSVILLE, PA., November 2, 1873.

Last night, Rt. Rev. M. Domenec delivered a very interesting lecture to a large audience at the Catholic church. His subject was "the Bible." The proceeds, over nine hundred dollars, were for the benefit of the parish school.

A free exhibition of photographic views was given to a large and fashionable audience in Town Hall, this evening by R. A. Burte, formerly of Pittsburgh. It was instructive and entertaining.

The Sprague Settlement.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., November 28.—The Sprague trust deed was argued late this evening by the A. and W. Sprague manufacturing corporation and individual members of the family. The copy is witheld from the public until it shall be executed by three trustees named in the instrument, which it is now expected, will be done to-morrow morning.

Weekly Sales of Steinway's—Bulletin No. 69.

The following is the weekly sale of the celebrated Steinway Pianos, as reported by Messrs. Kleber & Bro.

W. I. McKinney, Esq., bought a Steinway square piano.

Mrs. J. Groutt, Butler, bought a Steinway square grand piano.

Wilson Wall, Esq., bought a Steinway square piano.

Mrs. S. H. Darrah bought a Steinway square piano.

Capt. S. G. Speers bought a Steinway double round piano.

Theo. E. Tack, Esq., bought a Steinway cabinet grand piano.

Johnsword, Esq., bought a Steinway square piano, etc.

Steinway Pianos are not looked upon as mere articles of luxury, but as a necessity for any well ordered household. Children must be educated, no matter what the times, and the Steinway's being the best both for the beginner and the finished player, it is but natural that their sale should go on undiminished. And such, indeed, is the experience of the sole agents, Messrs. H. Kleber & Bro., who sell as many Steinways now as ever.

Franz Liszt, the greatest pianist of all times.

WEIMAR, September 3, 1873.

Messrs. Steinway & Sons,

Gents:—The magnificent Steinway Grand Piano now stands in my music room, and presents a harmonic totality of admirable qualities, a detailed enumeration of which is the more superfluous, as this instrument fully justifies the world-wide reputation that for years you have everywhere enjoyed.

After so much well-deserved praise, permit me to also add my homage and the expression of my undisguised admiration.

Yours, very truly,
FRANZ LISTZ.

The above may be regarded conclusive and final as to the superiority over all others of the Steinway manufacture—Franz Liszt being the highest authority in the world in musical instruments. America may justly be proud of the distinction of producing in the manufacture of Steinway and Sons the best Pianos—the Champion Pianos of the world.

The Daily Commercial.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1873.

The cry "On to Cuba," sounds very much like the "On to Richmond" cry of 1861. And it comes from about the same class of fellows.

The Rochester Democrat wants Sergeant Bates to carry the United States flag through Cuba. He will confer a great obligation upon this afflicted country if he will try it.

A caucus of the Republican members of the House of Representatives will be held to-day, to agree upon candidates for the various offices of that branch of the National Congress.

A general survey of the newspaper press of the country in reference to the question of war with Spain, shows a great predominance of ability on the side of peaceable settlement.

As winter continues to set closer in, let us talk more of trade and work instead of panic and suspension; for the reason that, in the degree in which we talk and feel and act either way, so do we awaken activity, or cause depression.

The average majority for the whole Republican ticket in Massachusetts, including Governor Washburn, is 21,706; excluding the Governor, 23,641, which is about the usual majority on the light vote generally cast in what are termed "off years."

Hon. Lyman Tremain, who conducted successfully the recent prosecutions against both Stokes and Tweed, was elected as a Congressman-at-large from New York, last year, on the Republican State ticket. He is probably the ablest man which that body will contain.

If your big boy thrashes my little boy, and you won't call him to account for it, I will. If you are a "struggling young Republic," it don't make any difference; that don't help to cure my boy's bruises, nor excuse you for your incapacity to make your boy behave himself.—N. Y. Com. Advertiser.

If your little boy had behaved himself and kept out of the way, he would not have been thrashed.

"Nobody asked you, sir, she said." United States Senator Howe, of Wisconsin, states that under "present circumstances" he could not accept of the vacant Judgeship on the United States Supreme bench. To be sure the position has not been tendered him, but that fact does not make his advance declination any the less suggestive. The debarring "circumstances" hinted at most probably relate to the salary grab; and—like the muser of whom it was said—

"The music in his ear he bore,
Long after it was heard no more,"

Mr. Howe has most likely been thinking over the meaning of the voice of the people.

The week closes upon a quiet, and comparatively comfortable condition of financial and business affairs. The tide of temporary suspensions has changed, and has given place to that of resumption. Each day's telegrams tell us now of renewed activity in the large industrial establishments that closed their doors a few weeks ago; thus once more affording occupation to thousands of hands. General business is also recovering from the shock, and everywhere a better feeling is manifested. This return of confidence and activity, though as yet only partial, will, it is to be hoped, soon become general on the part of all industrial and commercial concerns.

A week ago the New York war organs were chanting the cry of "Cuba first and diplomacy afterwards!" But now that diplomacy has triumphed, they profess to have been always in favor of it. The New York Evening Mail says:

"How cheaply the Burriel organs in this country will feel, when they read our demands on Spain, and see what can be done by brave diplomacy, backed up by an aroused people!"

If "brave diplomacy" has done any good, no thanks to you for it. The chief manager of our diplomacy, Secretary Fish, has been abused and howled at without stint by all the Cuban organs in that city and elsewhere.

The New York Journal of Commerce pays a very high, but a well-merited, compliment to Judge Noah Davis, for his firmness and dignity in the trial of the Tweed case. It says:

"The Judge's conduct of the Tweed trial was a beautiful example of judicial clearness impartiality and dignity. The culprit who is now entering on his just deserts in prison can find no honest cause of dissatisfaction with the judge who sent him there. Even Tweed's haughty port and matchless assurance broke down under the severe but truthful words, delivered from the bench in stern tones, which went home to his conscience (if he had one) and told him what a monster of baseness and ingratitude he had been, and how fully his crimes deserved the twelve years' imprisonment and the large fine meted out to him."

Some days ago we published a tabular statement, giving the names of sixty-eight Custom House offices on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, which cost $152,733 59 to collect $214,110,19; and forty-six out of which cost more than they collected. We are glad to observe that the Supervising Special Agent of the Treasury Department, in his report just submitted to the Secretary, takes strong ground in favor of consolidating the seventy-nine collection districts on the coast of the United States between Maine and Texas, into thirty-nine. The proposed redistricting is eminently a just measure, looking in the direction of economy and efficiency, by paying a few good salaries and enlarging the field of the collector's operations, and we hope to see the plan carried out without delay.

The revival of the important national industry of wooden shipbuilding keeps pace with the development of our iron shipbuilding interests. Upwards of 40,000 tons of wooden shipping will be built this season along the Kennebec, river alone, about five-eighths as much as in the most prosperous year of that trade. With regard to iron shipbuilding, it has been demonstrated that the best iron in the world for the purpose is the charcoal iron of Pennsylvania. Upon this subject the Philadelphia Inquirer pithily observes: "It is the proverbial boast of Englishmen that the Americans cannot make good beer because they have not the hops. We may retort by saying that the English cannot make good iron because they have not the charcoal." Two things are now certain. First, that we intend to profit by our advantage in this respect; and secondly, that the expansion to its former great proportions of the ocean-carrying trade of the United States is only a question of time.

A gentleman of an anylitical turn of mind has called our attention to a seeming conflict between Sections 1 and 6 of the 17th article of the new Constitution. The 1st section provides that "all railroads and canals shall be public highways, and all railroad and canal companies shall be common carriers." That is, that all railroad and canal companies shall be transporters, and their legitimate work shall be transportation. Yet section 6 of the same article provides that "No president, director, officer, agent, or employee of any railroad or canal company shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in the furnishing of material or supplies to such company, or in the business of tranportation as a common carrier of freight or passengers over the works owned, leased, controlled or worked by such company. If this does not prevent railroad presidents, directors, officers, agents or employees from being stockholders in their own roads, then language has ceased to have any force. Probably the purpose of the Convention was to prevent railroad officers from being interested in freight lines; but it has not, in that case, said what it meant. "The business of transportation as a common carrier" is defined by section 1 to be that of a railroad or canal company, and the officers of such companies are forbidden to be interested in that business, directly or indirectly, the longer a man lives the more he finds out.

Hon. Eli K. Price, in his 6th letter against the new Constitution cites the 17th article, which provides that "any association or corporation, organized for the purpose, shall have the right to construct and operate a railroad between any two points within the State, and to connect at the State line with railroads of other States," as conferring the power upon railroad corporations to pass through any city, or occupy any of its streets without asking its consent or being subjected to the restraints of any ordinance it may pass upon the subject. If a railroad company be chartered to build a road from the Delaware to the Ohio, it would have the power to traverse any street necessary to its use in either Philadelphia or Pittsburgh. He says:

"Any railroad company so authorized by the Legislature may construct their tracks and run their locomotives from the Pennsylvania Railroad terminus west of the Schuylkill, down Market street to the Delaware avenue, and down Broad street to League Island. Surely the Legislature, though bound by many withes of restriction, and the members, by an iron-clad oath, even with a fettered railroad corporation, may do great things within the limits of this new Constitution.

"The little horse railroad companies may not by section 9 construct any railway within the limits of any city without the consent of the local authority, but any railroad big enough may buy by the valuation of a jury any kind of a railroad, or go where there is no railroad without the consent of the local authority, and drive their steam locomotives through the streets of any city in the State. They shall have the right to construct and operate a railroad between any two points within this State."

We are just beginning to discover the beauties of this new instrument.

THE PLEA OF NECESSITY

In the famous case of the steamboat Caroline in 1837, Mr. Webster said that such a violation of neutrality could be justified only by a "necessity of self defense, instant, overwhelming, having no choice of means and no moment of deliberation. As will be remembered, the boat was employed by Canadian insurgents in carrying passengers and munitions of war from our border to the opposite shore. In response to the American secretary's complaint, Lord Ashburton contended that the act complained of was just such a case of necessity as had been described, and as the matter there ended, we may assume that the reply was deemed substantially satisfactory.

In a lecture delivered a few days ago at Yale College on the Spanish difficulty, Dr. Woolsey cited the case of the Carolinae as being of the same class with the case of the Virginius. They are cases, he argues, of the kind for which international law neither makes nor can make provision. If a rebellion were raging in Ireland, and an English war ship on high sea met with a foreign vessel laden with warlike munitions, troops and Irish officers, all unmistakably destined to re-enforce the insurgents can anybody doubt what the result would be? No matter of what nationality the vessel might be or claim to be, the British commander would certainly seize the adventurers, and Dr. Woolsey has too much respect for English sense to doubt that the British government would sanction the seizure. In other words, under pressure of necessity it would assume the responsibility of violating a general rule of international law and run the risk of unpleasant international consequences, rather than permit the completion of a voyage fraught with certain mischief, if not ruin to its dominion. Doubtless any other powerful government would pursue the same course in analogous conditions. In fact, in the case of Martin Koszta, the Hungarian taken from an Austrian frigate in the harbor of Smyrna by the commander of a United States war ship, a similar responsibility was assumed. In order to save the man who had a valid claim to American protection, it was necessary to act promptly, if at all, in defiance of apparent law, and in consideration of the necessity the act was ratified by the American government and applauded by the American people.

Now, it is in view of such reasons and precedents that in the present complications between Spain and this country, an appeal may fairly be made to American magnanimity and to American sympathy for Spanish Liberalism. A German contemporary laughs at Sumner's sensibility on the subject, remarking that America is also a republic whose rights on the sea must be maintained, however eloquent an orator, or however fine a character President Castelar may be. But, as the question stands, the well known sentiment toward us, of the government guilty of aggression is a matter of positive moment. Its plea in justification of the offense being stern necessity, its well known friendship for us affords a strong presumption in favor of the sincerity of the plea, an assurance that it is not mere subterfuge or evasion. The same fact besides affords a promise, or even a guaranty for the future. But after all it is only as an incidental and indeed quite subordinate consideration that the liberalism of the actual Spanish government is mentioned in the dispute. Whatever might be the form or spirit of the Madrid government, it would be the duty of the American government to pause long before resolving to go to war in vindication of the right of Cubans resident in New York to use the American flag for the protection of filibustering expeditions against Spanish rule in the West Indies. No American doubts, that his flag, whatever may be done about the Virginius, will be safe in future, as it has been in the past, safe from Spanish outrage or interference whenever employed in legitimate commerce. Hence the notorious fact that the shipping merchants of New York, Boston, etc., are hostile to a war policy at present.

Last not least can we with a good conscience engage in war to punish Spain for yielding to a necessity to which we know that we should ourselves in their position have yielded? And can we afford thus to establish a precedent which we are as likely as any other great nation to find inconvenient and adverse to our own interests.

FREE BANKING.

A western paper urges a resort to free banking as the surest way of bringing about a resumption of specie payments. This is the first time we have ever heard inflation urged as a means of getting back to a specie basis, yet the author of it seems dead enough in earnest to believe in what he says.

The argument in this behalf is that as the national banks are required to keep twenty-five per cent. of their circulation on hand in greenbacks, the free issue of national bank notes would eventually absorb all the greenbacks that have been issued, "and then," says our authority, "any further issue of national bank notes would have to be secured with a reserve of gold and silver, and that would be a resumption of specie payments." See it?

There are, say, $360,000,000 of greenbacks now issued. This sum would afford a bank reserve for $1,440,000,000 of national bank circulation, and that is more than double the amount of our present volume of currency. In the face of so bold a proposition as this, we are very timid in suggesting our own feeble views; but we would like to ask whether there is not some danger that, as the premium on gold would probably be very high with the currency expanded to that point, that fact alone would not prevent any further expansion beyond the limit where the greenbacks would be all absorbed? If gold went up to 150 or to 200, would men buy it at that rate to use as a reserve to issue bank notes upon? It does not seem likely; and it does seem much more likely that, when that point was reached, the expansionists would cry out for the issue of more greenbacks, just as they now cry for free banking.

We confess to our utter inability to cope with these western Solons in financial ability and skill; but to our weak comprehension it seems clear that every dollar added to the circulation increases the premium on gold and puts farther off the day of resumption. To double the volume of our present irredeemable currency is to double the difficulty of redeeming it. To argue such a question seems like arguing a self evident proposition, and we beg the expansionists that, in presenting their case, they will present it on its merits, and not with such bald and illogical backing as this. There may possibly be many good arguments in favor of expansion; but the plea that it will lead to the restoration of specie payments is not one of them.

A FORTUNATE REPUBLIC.

Jesuit Fathers are coming to the United States in great numbers, and no one will be surprised if before very long they afford some unmistakable indications of their presence and activity among us. The order would of course regard it as a serious reproach if many of its members could be busy anywhere without speedily making their influence felt. In connection with this topic it is interesting to learn that in our sister Republic of Equador, the pious and laborious Fathers are just now in great power and glory. Suspected by statesmen and abhorred by the people in so many of the States of the Old World, their exaltation in Equador seems the more worthy of attention. Mr. Garcia Moreno, President of the Republic, in his last message to Congress, indulges in a strain of pious remark which would by itself prove him to be a Christian statesman, worthy to serve Count Chambord as prime minister. But his piety is more than words. "Since," he says, "we have the fortune to be Catholic, let us be so logically and openly, not only in private relations, but also in our political life, and let us attest the genuineness of our feelings and language by the public testimony of our works." And then he calls on Congress to expunge from the laws the last traces of hostility to the church. These traces, it seems, are certain regulations handed down from the time of the Spanish domination, when they favored the crown at the expense of the church. With this recommendation of the President the policy of the Minister of Commerce is in harmony. The introduction and diffusion of articles injurious to morals and religion are to be severely punished. The articles specified are such books and newspapers as the good Jesuit Fathers cannot approve of. The entire press and booktrade are placed under the absolute control of the same judicious and deeply religious clergy, who will give the people only such information as seems likely to do them good and not harm. Happy citizens of Equador!

A Mexican Congressman has discovered a new method of getting rid of railroad bonds. He has introduced into the Mexican Congress a law which makes every citizen, between 18 and 45 years of age, liable to military duty, and to be drafted into the army; but among the classes excepted are all persons owning one or more shares in a National railroad. Railroading continues to thrive in Mexico.

The door-keeper of a Columbus theater refused a colored gentleman and lady admission to the parquette, although reserved seats had been purchased by them. Meeting the door-keeper on the street next day, the colored man knocked him down, and gave him a terrible beating. For this breach of the peace a fine of $14 was imposed.

GENERAL AND PARTICULAR.

The latest plan for an "elastic currency" is to have greenbacks printed on Indian rubber.

A Georgia man advertises that he will be hung in any man's place for fifteen thousand dollars.

Here is an excellent piece of sporting news: "The Cows of Hartford are running on full time."

Oregon county, Mo., has a town called Job. The locality must be a sickly one, and the town so-called because it is full of patients.

New Hampshire is rejoicing in the possession of two feet of solid snow, and at the same time suffering from a want of water in its wells.

A director of the Boston and Maine railroad has recovered judgment against his company for services not in the line of his official duty.

The Revenue Marine Bureau has selected stations on the lakes and rivers in the West with a view to applying life-saving stations in that section.

The fever panic at Pensacola has entirely subsided. Citizens are returning, business is resuming, and the town is beginning to look right again.

Sad news comes from New Orleans. That unfortunate city has got a "Committee of Seventy." Was it for this that it escaped the yellow fever?

The recent triangulation of New Hampshire shows that the position of some of the largest towns on the map varied nearly 10 miles from their true place.

An attempt is to be made in the Massachusetts Legislature to declare the annexation voting by the people of Boston last month an illegal proceeding.

In anticipation of a possible stoppage of communication with Havana several large importers of cigars in New York city are laying in large stocks.

A movement is on foot to establish a line of six steamers from New Orleans to Rio Janeiro, each to carry 2,500 tons of freight and make the passage in 22 days.

Nine hundred government workmen have brought suits in the court of claims for their "back pay" under the eight hour law, and eleven hundred more are getting ready to.

The colored men of Boston have resolved to refuse to support any candidate "who is not in favor of giving us a fair representation in every branch of municipal government."

The Secretary of the National Tobacco Association states that five hundred and thirty-four million and some odd thousand cigars have been exported from Havana since January 1, 1871.

Western cattle men report that in no previous season has the grass on the plains "cured down" so finely as the present fall. As a consequence, there will be no lack of good winter feed.

The Register of the Treasury reports an unusual daily transfer of bonds since the panic. The holders of registered stock, owing to the financial stringency, have been compelled to sell.

The present Erie canal season has been the shortest for thirteen years, embracing only 192 days Last year was the next shortest in this period, navigation continuing only 202 days.

The public surveys will next spring be extended over San Juan and the other islands on the line of our Northwest boundary, recently in dispute between Great Britain and the United States.

Two evidences of coming civilization in Japan are these: boat racing has been introduced, and the leading newspapers are fighting like cats and dogs over the extent of their circulation and influence.

Oregon has a surplus of four million bushels of wheat, this season, and is selling it at $1 per bushel, gold. This is pretty well for a population of 100,000. The State was never so rich and prosperous.

It seems that the manufacture of paper from jute is not such a novelty after all. The Commissioner of Dacca says jute is used in the manufacture of paper in the Atteah subdivision in Zillah Mymensing.

Where money is lent in Maryland, for the purpose of real estate, and a mortgage given to secure the loan, the Maryland Court of Appeals has just ruled, judgments against the mortgagor will intervene and attach before the mortgage.

Lobsters are now cultivated in a salt water pond on the New England coast. The pond covers thirty acres, and is so arranged that the water is partially changed at each tide. The food supply consists of refuse from the Boston fish markets.

The Colorado markets are full of buffalo meat, which sells for two and three cents a pound. The Utes and Sioux are very jealous of the white hunters for meddling with an industry which they think belongs more legitimately to them.

Of the one hundred county treasurers in Iowa, only six were re-elected at the late election, and of the one hundred and two in Illinois, only about ten were re-elected. The farmers declared that they "would have a new deal," and they have secured it.

The Union Pacific Railroad Company appears in the unusual role of reformer. As a large property owner of Lincoln county, Nebraska, it has obtained an injunction to restrain the proposed issue of $50,000 of the bonds of the county for money to erect public buildings.

Boston has a novelty in politics, which is nothing less than a mayoral candidate who claims, or his friends do for him, the support of all political parties. This many-sided candidate, in the language of the "Hub," is "a modified Democrat, with Republican tendencies."

A "team" of the members of the Irish Rifle Association, have challenged an equal number of American riflemen to shoot in the United States, in 1874, for the championship of the world. The Irish "team" is the same which in 1872 beat the English and Scotch "teams" at Wimbledon.

The cotton fields of Georgia are being turned upside down without waiting to get out the "last picking," and wheat is being sowed with a rush. The farmers say their dream of sudden wealth through cotton has dissolved; henceforth they will raise corn and small grain, and endeavor to keep out of debt.

Here is a reduction that is a reduction!—this is a fall in prices which those hungering and thirsting to be married will appreciate! The City Clerk of Fitchburg, Massachusetts, considering the toughness of the times, has announced that he will furnish marriage certificates until after Thanksgiving at the low price of fifty cents each.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

Rev. Wm. Wallace pastor Methodist Church, East Liverpool, Ohio, is meeting with success in his charge.

The Rev. J. K. Melhorn, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, South Side, is laboring to build up his congregation, and with some success. Mr. Melhorn was pastor of a church in Fayette county for a number of years before he came to this city.

The late Rev. E. D. Kenney, of the Presbyterian church, during his forty years' ministry, preached 8,510 sermons, enjoyed 85 seasons of awakening, with some 3,000 souls converted to God. "Well done, good and faithful servant."

At the dedication of the new church at Passaic, N. J., by Bishop Wiley, Sunday week, the contributions amounted to twenty-five thousand dollars. Of this amount, Dr. J. M. Howe, a well-known local preacher, gave ten thousand dollars.

The Rev. M. M. Swaney, pastor of Florence Charge, Methodist Episcopal church, has had a number of additions to the church of late. Mr. Swaney is a young minister of much promise, and is esteemed by the people among whom he labors.

Rev. Mr. Knight has withdrawn from the Free Church of Scotland, and his congregation with him It will be recollected Mr. Knight first preached from the pulpit of Mr. Martineau, the Unitarian, and afterwards published unscriptural views concerning the relation of prayer to the laws of nature.

Rev. Matteo Prochet, who made such a favorable impression wherever he visited during his stay in this country, sailed from New York for home on the 22d of October. He was a worthy representative of his honored branch of the church, the Waldensian, and will long be remembered most kindly by all who formed his acquaintance.

Rev. George D. Cummins, D. D., assistant Bishop of Kentucky, whose conduct in communing with members of other denominations at the late meeting of the Alliance, has kept him so prominently before the public for some weeks has addressed a letter to the senior Bishop of the Diocese formally withdrawing from the Episcopal Church.

Dr. Asa Mahan, in an article to the "Northwestern," discusses the writings of Gail Hamilton, particularly some of her recent contributions to the "Independent." In an article entitled, "The Blue Blood of Canaan," he says he is unable to find a statement that does not wear the aspect of truth grossly perverted, or error of the most gross and blasphemous character. "To me," the doctor says, "Gail Hamilton's thoughts appear to circle in one round of sentiment—that of hate, is a sarcastic and embittered form."

Rev. John Harwood, formerly of the Troy Conference, but recently serving as a supply in the Rock river Conference, died in Fair Haven, Ill., November 9th, aged seventy-three. He had an epileptic fit while preaching his last sermon, fainted and fell in the pulpit, recovered himself again, and arose and finished his sermon and died on the following Sunday.

Rev. Dr. Edward Beecher has been publishing a series of papers on the history of the doctrine of future punishment. The "Leader," Universalist, copies an article, and the editor, Dr. Chapin, says of it: "We, present his testimony as a most emphatic and unequivocal confirmation of what Universalists have been affirming for fifty years."

Rev. Henry H. Jessup, D. D., the well known missionary, has prepared a work entitled, "The Women of the Arabs," which will be published by Messrs. Dodd & Mead. It will doubtless be a work of great interest. It is said to be almost impossible to realize the state of social degradation in which the women of Syria have lived for centuries.

Amidst so many changes, and so much excitement and breaking in upon regular habits, constant watching and praying will prove a wonderful help to keep you from "falling into temptation." The opportunities for retirement, at times, will be few and irregular; but with "Christ dwelling in the heart by faith," prayer will be possible anywhere and always.

Rev. W. H. Goode, D.D., Presiding Elder of the Richmond District, North Indiana Conference, was in our office, Tuesday of last week, en route for Madison, on a visit of two or three days. For thirty-seven consecutive years, Dr. Goode has done effective work in the itinerancy. The condition of the work on his district is one of health and peace, with indications in several localities of an outpouring of the spirit.

The Rev. Mr. Christopher once visited an aged class leader, and prayed with the family. The cat became alarmed at them, when they knelt to pray, and the minister at once understood the reason of the fright, he said to the class leader, "you are not converted." The leader replied, "are you my judge?" Mr. C. remarked that if "family prayer had been observed in the family, the cat would not have been so frightened." Many other cats would leap out of the window, we fear, if the worship should be introduced.

PERSONAL.

The biography of the late Chief Justice Chase by Judge Robert Warden, will be published by the first of February

Christine Nilsson-Rouzaud is the owner of a piece of real estate in Peoria, and it is said, will erect upon it a magnificent residence in the spring.

The emperor of Germany has conferred upon Dr. Dollinger, on the occasion of his fifty years' professor's jubilee, the order of the red eagle of the second class with the star.

Retribution has at last overtaken Great Britain for the dreadful visitation of lecturers she has poured out upon us. Ann Eliza, Mrs. Brigham No. 17, is going to lecture in London in January.

"Grace Greenwood" writes of the late John C. Heenan, that the deceased expressed to his physician "great regret and a manly shame for much of his past career, and an humble desire to live that he might lead a better life."

Sir John Duke Coleridge, whose awful distinction it is that he spoke for three weeks in the first Tichborne trial, is to be elevated to the peerage with the title of Baron Coleridge. The reward is scarcely adequate to the effort. He ought to be made Duke of Leatherlungs.

The belief that Mr. Blaine is to be re-elected Speaker is so prevalent that a singular mistake has occurred in the Departments. In the official letters transmitting various public documents to the Speaker of the House, in accordance with law, several of the bureau officers have directed their letters to Hon. James G. Blaine.

Charley Ross, the successful rider of Thad. Stevens in the great race at San Francisco, will receive from his owner a present of $2,000 in coin, and is also to be sent to a first-class school for two years, all his expenses to be paid. He also won a handsome sum in the pools, and received a number of twenties from heavy winners on the race.

The death of General Ryan calls attention to a new specimen of secret-society flummery, of which he was a leading opponent, known as the "Ancient Order of Egyptian Monks," with "monasteries" in various parts of the country, and such officers as "G and Khedive," "grand cyclops," etc. What could be expected of a full-grown man who "invited his soul" with such nonsense!

Paul B. Du Chaillu has written to a friend in New York from the interior of Norway. The intrepid traveller says he had gone through, during the last two years, the whole of Scandinavia, from its southern limits to the Polar Sea, and that he had collected a vast amount of splendid material for his forthcoming book and lectures. Mr. Du Chaillu writes that he expects to be in New York about the middle of December.

THE PROBLEM.

Two parted long, and yearning long to meet,
Within an hour the life of months repeat;
Then come to silence, as if each had poured
Into the other's keeping all his hoard.

And when the life seems drained of all its store,
Each idly wonders why he says no more,
Why, since they've met, does mutual need seem small,
And what avails the presence, after all?

Though silent thought with those we love is sweet,
The heart finds every meeting incomplete;
And with the dearest there must sometimes be
The wide and lonely silence of the sea.

CHARLOTTE F. BATES

—In Lippincott's Magazine for December.

Chief Justices of the Supreme Court.

In view of the probable early appointment of a Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, the following table will be found interesting. It comprises a complete list of all the Chief Justices which have heretofore been appointed, the State of their residence, and their age when appointed, by whom appointed, the periods of service, the dates of birth and death of each, and age at time of death.

From this table it will be seen that all of the Presidents who have heretofore been required to perform the responsible duty of selecting jurists for this exalted position, viz: Washington, Adams, Jackson, and Lincoln, have concurred in the selection of comparatively young men. No one of them had passed the meridian of a vigorous manhood at the date of appointment. The oldest, Roger B. Taney, was only 59 years old, Rutledge and Chase were 56, Marshall 46, and Jay and Ellsworth were but 44 each.

| NAME. | Appointed by. | Held Office. | Born. | Died. | Age when appointed | Age at death. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| John Jay, N. Y. | Washington.... | 1787-'94 | 1745 | 1829 | 44 | 84 |
| John Rutledge, S. C. .......... | " | 1795-'96 | 1739 | 1800 | 56 | 61 |
| Oliver Ellsworth, Conn. | " | 1796-1800 | 1752 | 1807 | 44 | 55 |
| John Marshall, Va. ........... | Adams... | 1801-'35 | 1755 | 1835 | 46 | 81 |
| Roger Brooke, Taney, Md. | Jackson.. | 1836-'64 | 1777 | 1864 | 59 | 87 |
| Salmon Portland Chase. O. | Lincoln. | 1864-.73 | 1808 | 1873 | 56 | 65 |

The Patent Office, Washington.

But attractive as this picturesque grouping of avenues and edifices may be, the attraction does not belong to the outside alone; inside the great doors of the majestic halls you will find that time has wings while you pass in review the trophies of all the zones, and of the meteoric heavens, too, preserved in the Smithsonian, or the archives of the country in the Patent Office. This latter is indeed a place of enchantment. The Pompeiian hall has something of the air of a hall dressed for legerdemain, and if you pause to think you will note a strange wizardy at work there. You linger before a little printing press, and as if magical clouds rose and shut out the work day world, the skies of Greece are overhead and the Ancient searching for his lever with which to move the world passes down the room and lingers with you; for surely he has found the lever, and surely the world has been moved with it, the boundaries of empires broken up, kings discrowned, republics ruined. Go farther: a case of toys, harmless trifles enough arrests you—cannon a finger long, batteries the size of a lady's spool-stand, but the reduced models of death dealing engines whose power of wholesale slaughter may one day revolutionize the codes of nations and abolish warfare. In another case you observe only a lump of coal, a phial of pitch, a flask of oil, and the necromancer of the place has dipped his rod down into the central darkness of the earth and drawn up light like the day's. Yet beyond; an iron stirrup and a slender spur, and the sewing girl has but to set her foot there and escape the shapes that dog her. Not far away, again, we remember the Oriental magician, who as often as the king cut of his head grew another in its place, as we see the machinery for a feat almost as wonderful in the exact anatomy of steel springs and leather ligaments made to fit upon the very nerves of volition themselves, till the halt walk and the maimed are made whole. In this spot is the jar into which the fisherman shut the afrite; in that are the great genii who gather in a harvest; and in still another there lies a tiny thing answering your touch with no louder noise than a buzz and a click, but its whisper can be heard from end to end of the land, and it runs beneath the roar of ocean to carry the voice of one world to another. In fact, within these crystal cells the intelligence of all our millions is concreted; and it is no wonder that in the face of the marvels here inventors are sometimes seized with a temporary madness, and have to be cared for till the fit passes.—Lippincott's Magazine for December.

CARD.

The reduction in values that has taken place within the past few weeks in all kinds of Dry Goods has been enormous: prices of everything, both in Foreign and Domestic Goods, have declined so much that goods are selling to-day at much lower prices than ever before in the history of the Dry Goods Trade.

We are pleased to announce to our customers and friends that we have fortunately been able to take advantage of the decline in the Eastern markets, and have purchased very largely at the reduced prices, and are now prepared to offer, and are now offering some of the most decided bargains that have ever been offered in this market. Our largely increased sales for the last few weeks convince us that the public appreciate our endeavors to furnish them GOODS AT LOW PRICES. That we are offering the bargains we represent all who favor us with a call will be convinced of. Our stock is unusually full and complete. The goods are all new and fresh, and the prices at least thirty per cent. lower than the goods have been sold within the last ten years. We are determined to move our immense stock as rapidly as possible, and will make prices that cannot fail to do it,

Valuable Farm
FOR SALE.
The undersigned, Attorneys in fact for the heirs of Benjamin Keefer, late of Sewickley Township, Westmoreland county, Pa., deceased, offer at PRIVATE SALE all that certain Tract of Land, situate in Sewickley Township, Westmoreland county, Pa., bounded by lands of Ezra Highbarger, P. S. Pool, heirs of Robert Pinkerton, deceased, and others, late the real estate of Benjamin Keefer, deceased,
CONTAINING NINETY-SIX ACRES,
More or less, having thereon erected a two-story Brick House, 30x25, Frame Bank Barn, 60x40, Wagon Shed, Corn Crib, Cider Mill Spring House unsurpassed in the county and other improvements The Farm is in the highest state of cultivation, has abundance of Limestone of the best quality for burning; has about 70 acres cleared and the balance good Oak Timber; has three never-failing springs of good water and water in every field, and has two young fruit bearing Orchards.
THE WHOLE TRACT IS UNDERLAID WITH TWO VEINS OF GOOD COAL.
The upper vein four feet and the lower one eight feet in thickness—the latter being the celebrated Youghiogheny river vein. Both veins can be mined on the farm by drifting. The Farm joins the Big Sewickley Creek, and in case the proposed Railroad now being surveyed is made, this coal can be easy of access, and would be a key to a much larger tract lying back from the creek and the proposed line of Railroad.
TITLE INDISPUTABLE. For price and terms call on or address

Valuable Farm For Sale.
We offer for sale the Farm of the late John Coulter, deceased, in Marshall township, Allegheny county, Pa.; bounded on the east by the Harmony Plank Road and Anton Gaugler, on the south by Casper Forthe and on the north by Bradford's heirs, containing about 180 Acres, 140 of which are cleared and most of it in grass, balance in timber; the whole under fence. Several never failing springs of water on said farm. This farm is located on the forks of the Sewickley, Rochester, Beaver, Brighton, Harmony, Franklin and Pittsburgh Roads. Distance from Pittsburgh 13 miles; from Sewickley, Rochester and Beaver about 10 miles each, and from Harmony 11 miles. The improvements are a Large 2-story frame Dwelling House, with an L to it, a frame Store House, a 2 story frame tenant House, a large bank barn, spring house, corn crib, coal house, and other farm buildings; 2 good bearing orchards on it. Would divide very well in 3 or 4 small farms, throwing good supply of water in each farm; also timber on each place. If the above property is not sold before the 5th day of February, 1874, it will be offered at public outcry on said farm, at 1 o'clock on that day. For further information apply to JOHN H. FOWLER, Esq. near said place, or to JOS. COULTER, Unionville, Butler county, Pa.

PRODUCE AND GENERAL MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY COMMERCIAL, Friday, November, 28, 1873.

REMARKS—Trade in our city market opened up yesterday morning with a fair demand after the Thanksgiving festival; but of course not equal to the volume of business usually transacted at this season of the year. Dealers are confining their purchases to small lots merely to supply their immediate wants. The stocks on hand are large and full to all demands, but merchants prefer holding them to sell to any but cash buyers, who generally make their purchases below our quotations. The produce market continues firm, and is likely to continue till the export demand is satisfied. The market for bacon and provisions continues fair for the season, and prices are now considered as touched bottom.

The following are the wholesale prices, unless otherwise noted; from store, in a jobbing way, the usual advance is charged:

APPLES—The receipts are not quite equal to the demand, and the market in consequence is somewhat firmer. Sales are brisk at the following quotations: Fair to medium at $2@2 50; prime to choice winter apples at $3 40@4 per barrel.

ASHES.—The demand was limited, and so was the transactions holders would like to realize. The asking rates are: Soda Ash, common, 3¾@4; Refined, 5c; Nitrate, 5c; Potash, 9c; Pearl, 10c; Arsenic, 6a6½c; Black Lead, 5c.

BORAX—Refined, 25 ℔ lb.

ALES.—The market was steady, with a fair demand. The card prices are as follows: X $8 ℔ bbl; XX, $9; India ale $10 ℔ bbl; Bass' English ale, in kilderkins of 22 gals, $22 75@24; bbls, 44 gals, $42 25@04 hhds, 68 gals, $62 50@65; in cases, bottled, $20 75; Wm. Younger's India pale ale in cases of 8 doz bottles, $3 ℔ doz; Robt Younger's sparkling ale $3 ℔ doz; Guinness' stouts, bottled by E & A Borke, $3 ℔ doz; Cantrell & Cochrane's ginger ale $2 25 ℔ doz; Caswells, Haxard & Co's ginger ale $1 75 ℔ doz.

APPLE BUTTER—The supply was fully up to the demand, the current rates are 60@70 per gallon.

BUTTER.—The supply is fully equal to the requirements of the market, but prices have undergone no change, although the tendency continues downward. Sales are effected at the following rates: common to fair 10 and 12 to 15, and medium to good 18@22.

BROOM CORN—Market quiet with sales red and red topped 5¾@6¼ fair to good green 7½@8½. Hurl 9½@10c per lb.

BEANS—The supply was fully up with the demand. Prices are without change. We note sales in regular way $2 25@2 65.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—The demand being limited, sales were of a similar description with prices ranging from 4½@4¾c per lb.

BANNER BAKING POWDER—Market steady; sales per doz ¼ lb cans, $1.60; ½ lb do $3 00; 1 lb do $5 50; 5 lb cans, $25 00 per dozen.

CANNED GOODS.—Moderately active, but prices are lower. Tomatoes are lower now that they have been at any time this year. Peaches have also declined, while Winslow's Corn is still holding its own, as if is a monopoly, has no competition of any consequence. Tomatoes are being sold in a jobbing way at $2,25, and $2.30 per dozen for 3 lb

PICKLES.—Medium, bbls, $10; medium half bbls, $5 50; half bbls Boston mixed, $8 00; pints, plain or mixed, per dozen, $1 50; quarts, plain or mixed, $2 50; half gallons, plain, $ 75; gallons, plain, $5 50; Hexagon gallons, mixed, $10; English chow chow, pints, $4 50; English chow chow, quarts, $6 00; English mixed pickles, pints, $3 00; English mixed pickles, quarts, $6 00; English cauliflower, pints, $3 00; English cauliflower, quarts, $6 00; English picalili, pints, $3 50; English picalili, quarts, $6 00; English white onions, pints, $4 50; English white onions, quarts, $7 50; English gherkins, pints, $3 75 English gherkins, quarts, $6 50; English Mofussil, pickles, pints, $4 50.

Crackers—The demand has improved. Dealers appear well pleased with the situation. Prices for the following grades remain firm but unchanged. We quote: Lemon biscuit 11½c; ginger snaps 12½c; oyster crackers 7c; soda crackers 7c; sugar crackers 9½c; butter crackers 7c; water do 7½c ℔ lb.

Cements—We have nothing new to report in regard to this article. Prices were as follows: Beeson's Phœnix $2 25@2 50; Louisville $2 25@2 50; Rosendale $4 00@4 50; white lime, $2 00; calcined plaster, $4 50; land plaster, $3 00@3 50.

DRIED FRUIT—The supply continues in excess of the demand, while the demand has fallen off. Prime bright Apples sell at 7@8c ℔ lb. Prime dried Peaches 10@12c ℔ lb.

EGGS—The market is steady, and prices are firm in consequence of a limited supply. Strictly prime are held at 28@30c, and pickled at 18a25c per doz by the barrel.

FISH—Prices remain unchanged. We quote: Extra No. 1 mess mackeral, $35; No 1 mess mackerel, $33; extra No 1 shore mackerel, $28; No 1 shore mackerel, $23; extra No 1 bay mackerel, $19; No 1 bay mackerel, $17; extra No 2 shore mackerel, $17; No 2 bay mackerel, $14; large No 3 mackerel, $11; No 3 mackerel, $10; split Labrador herring, $8 to $9; white fish, $7 50a8 00; lake trout, $7 00a7 50; large Georges codfish, $7 50 ℔ 100; medium Georges codfish, $6 50 ℔ 100; red herring, scale 50c ℔ box; No 1, 35c ℔ box.

FEATHERS—There is little or nothing doing, and can be quoted at 78@80c ℔ lb; No 2 C, 40a73c as to quantity and quality.

FLOUR—The market was steady with a fair consumptive demand. The current rates are

| | |
|---|---|
| State amber wheat | $8 25@8 50 |
| State red wheat | 7 75@8 00 |
| Fancy St. Louis | 9 00@9 50 |
| Fancy Kentucky white wheat | 8 25 |
| Good Ohio red wheat | 7 50@7 75 |
| Wisconsin Spring wheats | 6 50@7 75 |
| Minnesota Spring wheats | 7 00@7 25 |

Pheasants, $4 50 per dozen.
Rabbits, $2 50 per dozen.
Squirrels, $2 00 per dozen.
Wild Turkeys, $2 00@2 50.

GRAIN.—The market continues quiet, and the feeling is dull for some descriptions, while oats continue firm.

WHEAT.—The market continues firm, at the late advance. Sales are reported as follows: Fair to prime Red Winter at $1.40@1.45; Amber $1.50; and White at $1 55.

OATS—The market remains firm, with sales at the following rates: Mixed at 45c.; and prime White at 45c. per bushel.

CORN.—Shelled is quoted in Elevator at 51@53c.; new ear 55@57c.; old 60@62c.

RYE.—The market was quiet here although there has been a material advance in the rest. The nominal rates are 80c.

BARLEY.—The market is still reported in an unsettled condition, and it is difficult to obtain correct quotations. We therefore give $1.25@1.40 as the nominal price.

GROCERIES—The feeling in this market continues more satisfactory with an increased home demand. In the East coffees continued active, while sugars were firm and unchanged. Syrups are lower.

COFFEE—Choice Rio 26¾@27c; good to prime 25½; fair to good 23½@24c; roasted one lb. packages 30c; loose 29½c.

SUGARS—Patent cut loaf 12½c; Crushed, Powdered and Granulated 11½c; Standard A 10¾c; B 10½c; Ex C 10¼c.

Pearl Barley—Nos. 3 and 6, 7c ℔ lb.

Oat Meal—A and B, 4½c ℔ lb.

Candles—Star, 21c ℔ lb; stearine, 14c ℔ lb; mould, 12@12½c ℔ lb.

HOMINY—The market has undergone no change; we are reported sales at $4 50a$5 00 per bbl.

ONIONS—Are in good supply with sales in a regular way $4 00a$4 50 per bbl.

POTATOES—The receipts continue very light, and prices remain firm. We note sales—Peachblows, by the car load, 95c@$100; mixed, 70a90c; Baltimore sweets, $4 00a$4 50 per bbl.

MINCE MEATS—The demand continues light but we have no change to note in prices. We quote at 11@11½c ℔ lb by the ½ bbl, and 12c ℔ lb by the tub.

MILL FEED—We have no change to note in prices. One car lot shorts to-day sold at $16 00 ℔ ton. We quote: Middlings $25@30 ℔ ton; from store $1 25@1 50 ℔ 100 lbs; oats and corn chops, $1 35@1 40 ℔ 100 lbs; bran $14@16 ℔ ton.

NUTS—We can quote hickory nuts $1 25@1 50 ℔ bushel; black walnuts are dull at $1 75@2 00 ℔ bbl; peanuts firm at 10@12c ℔ lb; chestnuts $4 00@4 25 ℔ bushel.

BACON AND PROVISIONS.—The market continues steady with a limited demand from the interior, caused by the fact that the hog killing season has now arrived. The card rates are hams, extra, s c 12½c; shoulders, 9½c; plain 8½c; breakfast bacon 11½c; dried beef, S. C., 15½c; beef tongues $1 50 per dozen; rib sides 8½c; short rib 9c; clear 9½. MESS PORK—$15 00 per bbl; ham sausage 10c. The arrivals of cattle for the week ending to-day, have been fair of through cattle intended for the Eastern trade, and for this point. Last week we had a very light run particularly of good and prime stock, and with a fair attendance of buyers, sellers had no difficulty in advancing prices ½c on common and ½c on good cattle, and at the advance trade ruled active and closed strong. It was expected by many that the advance in last weeks market would cause a heavy run this week, but to this time such has not been the case, the run as above noted being but fair. The attendance of buyers is good, there being a good many transient dealers now, for the purchase of light cattle. On Monday and Tuesday a good deal of light stock changed hands in single loads to country men, but trade was not considered active, as the Philadelphia men were here and not taking hold. They had a bad market on Monday last, and complained about losing money and were not willing to purchase unless at a concession of ½c. Up till yesterday morning they had not purchased anything and were still bearing down the market. But cattle not coming freely and we think they cannot get prices as low as they would like. The quality of the cattle offering at this point is rather better than usual, and unless sellers can get something like a fair price they will ship further east. At this writing the market is slow and we think in order to make trade active a decline of ½c will have to be suffered.

Hogs.

The run of hogs this week has been fair, both as to quality and numbers. The market closed last week with very little stock unsold, the demand being about equal to the supply. On Monday the trade opened with a fair number of hogs offering and with a demand hardly equal to it. Prices ruled about 25c per hundred pounds lower than at the time of our last report. On Tuesday quite a number of hogs changed hands at about Monday's prices, which was $4 50 for the best tops, the market in the evening closing firm. On Wednesday the market opened with the weather cold and bracing, and altogether more favorable for this branch of business than any day had for a week. The attendance of buyers was large. In addition to the regular dealers there were a great many country buyers here taking single car loads. Notwithstanding the receipts of hogs at Chicago on Tuesday were the largest ever known, being over 50,000 head, the advices did not have any effect here as trade ruled active all day and prices 10c per hundred higher on all grades and kinds, $4 50 being paid for choice top hogs.

The market closes firm at about the following figures:

| | |
|---|---|
| Extra Philadelphia | $4 50 |
| Prime " | 4 35 to 4 40 |
| " Yorkers | 4 15 to 4 25 |
| Common | 4 00 |

Sheep.

The run of sheep for the week fair. The demand is light—nothing but the best wanted. Prices compared with last week have undergone very little change. Market rules dull and slow at the following figures:

| | |
|---|---|
| Extra 100 lbs fine wool | $5 25 |
| " 95 " " | 5 00 |
| " 90 " " | 4 75 |
| Prime 85 " " | 4 00 to 4 50 |

PITTSBURGH OIL TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY COMMERCIAL, SATURDAY, November 29, 1873.

REMARKS—We have to report a continued dull market. This, however, has been the situation for some time. Prices have undergone no change.

CRUDE.

The market drags along slowly, presenting nothing very new or important. The nominal rates are 2½c per gallon. In the oil regions no sales were reported. Parker's was quoted at 80c.

REFINED.

In the absence of sales, we can only give the nominal rates; quoted free on cars at works 11½c. We heard of no sales.

PHILADELPHIA—Holders are asking for spot 13½c; December 13½c.

NEW YORK—Dull; December quoted at 13½a13½c; March 13½c.

OIL BARRELS.

Continue dull. City $1 75; country $1 70.

[By Atlantic and Pacific Tel. Line.]

FOXBURG, PA, November 28.—Market quiet; nothing doing; not recovered from the war with Turkey; sales at 75@80c.

PARKERS, November 28—11 A. M.—Market not fairly opened. We quote Fairview 70@75 and Union 80@85.

TITUSVILLE, PA., November 28—11 A. M.—Market quiet; not much doing. 92½ bid, 95 asked. No transactions.

PHILADELPHIA, November 28—11:20 A. M.—Refined 13½, crude 4½; bbls 10, Dec. 13½.

OIL CITY, November 28—12 M.—Market unchanged. Little doing. Sales at $1.

Cleveland.

The "Commercial Review" furnishes the following report of the Cleveland pig iron market:

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25, 1873.

The pig iron market for the past week has evinced greater activity, orders for small lots having been received, to an extent quite encouraging to the trade. Prices are not, however, firm, and liberal discount has been allowed for cash wherever it has been offered. Ordinary foundry brands may be quoted in good demand. Lake Superior charcoal is dull, and Scotch pig is not fairly active. A decided improvement in the tone of the general market, however, is noticeable, and the trade appears to be getting back to a more business-like basis.

We quote nominally as follows:

LAKE SUPERIOR CHARCOAL FOR CAR WHEELS AND MALLEABLE USE.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF THE PIG IRON AND BLOOM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY COMMERCIAL, SATURDAY November 29, 1873.

The Pig Iron market continues in a very dull and unsatisfactory condition. The money stringency is still having its effect on the trade, hence the transactions are very light.

We have rumors of cash sales made at $25 00 per ton, but as we have no definite information in regard to them, we do not feel at liberty to report them as actual sales.

We are reported the following sales:

BITUMINOUS COAL SMELTED FROM L. S. ORE.

| | |
|---|---|
| 100 Tons Gray Forge, | $30-4m |
| 100 Tons No. 2 Foundry, | P.t. |
| 30 Tons No. 1 Foundry, | $36 4 m |
| 20 Tons Foundry, | 32 4 m |
| 10 Tons No. 1 Foundry, | 36-4m |

CONNELLSVILLE COKE.

| | |
|---|---|
| 300 Tons No. 1 Forge, | P.t. |

ANTHRACITE.

| | |
|---|---|
| 40 Tons No. 1 Foundry, | $36-4m |

Additional Coal Departures.

The following are the additional Coal and Coke departures since our last issue. The river was a light one, but fully as large as was expected. So far as we could ascertain, the run has been a very successful one. Below will be found the particulars:

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

Stocks generally were strong from the opening until about midday, with an advance prices ranging from a ½ to ¾ per cent. This improvement was afterwards lost in many cases, but after second call buoyancy was again the feature of the market. During the last hour of business depression prevailed, and some stocks declined to the lowest point of the day, the market leaving off feverish in tone. The volume of business was large, and dealing excited throughout the day. The advance in gold and depression in stocks late in the day was caused by reports that Minister Sickles had left Madrid; that there was increased activity in the navy yards, and vague rumors of failures which could not be authenticated.

STOCK SALES.

The stock sales between 10 and 2 o'clock amounted to 191,000 shares, of which 44 600 were Western Union, 27,000 Union Pacific, 12,400 Wabash, 10,000 Ohios, 15,000 New York Central, 8,800 St. Paul, 15,-300 Lake Shore, 12,400 Northwest, 3,500 Rock Island, and 8,500 C. C. and I. C.

STEAMBOATMEN apprehend a scarcity of wood on the upper Missouri next season.

THE steamer Exchange, Capt. Shuman, left Cincinnati on Wednesday for this port.

The towboat Rover, Capt. Greenlee, is en route for this port, with a tow of iron ore.

THE steamer "Granite State," Captain Kerr, left for Portsmouth on time, with a fair trip.

CAPT. FRANK M. CAYTON has quit the river and gone into the insurance brokerage business in St. Louis.

THE sunken steamer, Henry Probasco, was insured in Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Hartford, for $30,000.

LOUISVILLE—The wharfage at this port for the two weeks ending Saturday, 22d inst., amounted to $855 10.

THE Lioness will hereafter be engaged in towing between Cairo and St. Louis, in the interest of Wm. H. Brown.

CAPTAIN S. BALL is en route to New Orleans on the Charles Bodmann, to assume command of the Andy Ackley.

THE Ouachita Bell is said to have been paid $250 for helping the Belle Lee the other day, when she grounded at Island 43.

JOHN S. JONES, who used to run clerk on the Fort Gibson, Minneola, and other steamers, is now selling fruit trees in Kentucky.

THE marks last evening indicated nine feet five inches and falling; the weather during the day was cold, toward evening it moderated.

R. C MASON, clerk of the E. H. Durfee, was in Sioux City on Thursday. The boat will winter at Sioux City. He left her at Yankton.

N. B. FOWLER, formerly clerk on the Thompson Dean, still adheres to his milk farm, forty miles east of St. Louis, and he makes money, too.

THE Lawrence struck a log on the Mississippi, above Cairo, and broke her rudder and skag. It was thought she would run to Cairo and reship.

CAPT. A. B. SHAW, an old Pittsburgher, is here on a visit. His numerous friends will be pleased to know that he is in the enjoyment of excellent health.

COMMODORE ROLLINGPIN, river editor of the St. Louis "Times" will begin a series of lectures throughout the country, on Dec. 3, at the Mercantile Library Hall, St. Louis.

THE two year old child of Capt. J. S. Cummings, of the steamer Ella, died on Friday last, and the remains, accompanied by the child's father, came Ohioward by that Friday.

OLIVER HOLMS, engineer of the steamer Exchange is very ill at the residence of Geo. Jones in Cincinnati, the disease being softening of the brain. Mr. Holms resides in New Albany, Ind.

THERE will be a meeting of the Coal Exchange at their rooms on this afternoon, November 29, at one and a half o'clock. Members are urged to attend, as business of importance will be transacted.

THE smoke from the burning woods in Missouri was so dense last Friday night that pilots could not see their way through it, and a number of boats were compelled to lay up in Bird's Bend until Saturday morning.

THE splendid side-wheel steamer Juniata, Capt. C. L. Brennan, takes her departure this day at 4 P. M. for Cincinnati and Louisville. The boat is A. No. 1 in all respects, and so are the officers. Our good friend, W. S. Dravo, will be found in the office.

THE new and handsome steamer Shippers' Own, Capt. Ryman, is announced for Louisville, Evansville, and Nashville. She will go directly through without re-shipping. She is intended for the upper Cumberland, and is admirably adapted for that stream.

THE powerful tow boat Comet, Capt. William McClintock, takes her departure this day, positively, for Louisville, Cairo, and St. Louis. Shippers can rely on this. Capt. McClintock is an old Pittsburgher, and is an experienced boatman. By the way, Mr. F. McClintock, one of the owners of the Comet, will go out in her this trip.

SAD ACCIDENT.—Mr. R. Semberton, second mate of the Granite State, was badly injured, yesterday morning, on the wharf. The rudder was being repaired, when by some mishap it fell on Mr. Semberton, injuring him terribly. He was properly cared for by the officers of the boat. He has a wife and three children, who reside in Lawrence county, Ohio.

THE St. Louis "Democrat" says: The Mollie Moore ran through dense flocks of geese, killing many of them, and enough of the maimed birds fell on deck to supply several restaurants for a week. The fog continued, but she continued her course, and at last, to the great disgust of Capt. Haney, struck a deck so much denser than the previous ones that the course of the boat was changed, and before the engineer could stop her she ran into the bank. The softness of the clay saved the boat from injury. This is Capt. Haney's Christmas story.

ANDY PAULEY, engineer of the Natchez, writes to John Schaffer, Esq., at St Louis:

"I have gone to hard work again. As to the high and low pressure combination cut off, on the Natchez, found everything working beyond my expectation. It has made a saving of $400 per week, the boat making the same time from point to point on 110 pounds of steam she did before on 140 pounds. She turns a wheel with more ease than ever, and without any wear or tear. A person sitting in the cabin would hardly know that the boat is moving if he did not hear the sound of the machinery.

The Soldiers' Colony.

A a meeting of the Pennsylvania Soldiers' Colony, held last evening the following officers were elected: President, Mr. Joseph Watt; Treasurer, R. Shearer; Secretary, J. Hannan. Persons wishing to join can do so at the meeting, to be held on the second and fourth Fridays of each month, at Municipal Hall, at which place the Secretary may be addressed.

Lodge 45 A. Y. M. Election.

At a regular meeting of Lodge 45 A. Y. M., held at Masonic Hall, Fifth avenue, on Wednesday evening, the following gentlemen were elected to serve as officers for the ensuing Masonic year, commencing on St. John's day next: W. M., Wm. M. Pore, Jr.,; S. W., H. C. McCurdy; J. W., W. H. Cramp; Secretary, A. C. Wilson; Treasurer, Wm. Scott; Member of Consolidated Charity Fund, Dr. A. M. Pollock; Trustees, Wm. M. Pore, Jr., Charles A. Colton, Wm. Noble; Representative to Grand Lodge, Wm. Noble.

Panic Talk.

A scrap of conversation in this wise was overheard in an office in this city a few days ago:

"How's business?

"Dull! Awfully dull!"

"Doing any advertising?"

"No; took 'em all out a month ago."

"How long since business got dull?"

"O, three or four weeks ago."

"That is—about the time you stopped advertising.

(Merchant ruminates and canvasser looks innocent.)

Death of Alexander McClintock.

We regret to be called upon to report the death of Alexander McClintock, a well known and worthy citizen of Pittsburgh, which event occurred yesterday evening at his late residence. Mr. McClintock was an active business man for a number of years. For a time he was in the carpet business, but latterly in lumber, conducting an extensive sawmill near Lawrenceville. He was one of the original members of the Duquesne Grays, for a long time a member of Councils, and took an active part in municipal affairs. Mr. McClintock has many friends, and was much esteemed.

Republican Nominations, Twelfth Ward.

The Republicans of the Twelfth ward have made the following nominations for city and ward offices:

Select Council—Christian Rott.

Common Council—Thomas Rosewell, Wm. Sewall.

School Director, First precinct—Wm. Freeman.

Judge of Election—Samuel E. Herron.

Inspector of Election—J. F. Rivers.

Return Inspector—James Lewis.

Assessor—Wm. Moore.

Constable—Wm. Lewis.

Fires Last Night.

About half-past 11 o'clock last night an alarm of fire was given from box 218, corner of Penn avenue and Euclid street. It was caused by the burning of a stable located in Oak alley, in the Sixteenth Ward, and owned by Henry Conrad. The flames were extinguished before the whole establishment was consumed. The origin of the fire, and the loss occasioned has not yet been ascertained.

About one o'clock this morning an alarm was given from box 47, Niagara Engine House. The fire was at the corner of Penn avenue and Sixteenth streets in a building occupied as a candy store by by Mrs. McGrew. The loss is said to have been about $200. No insurance.

Military Parade.

The parade of the Duquesne Grays on Thanksgiving day under the command of Lt. Col. Guthrie was a very creditable affair. The men presented a very fine appearance of course, and displayed skill in marching and the handling of arms. The new Eighteenth regiment band, under the leadership of Mr. Eugene Staley, and consisting of twenty-six pieces, made its first appearance at the head of the column. It is intended to increase the number to thirty-six pieces, and in time it can be made one of the best military bands in the city. Since the resignation of Col. Campbell, Lieutenant Colonel Guthrie is talked of for the vacant position.

Market Revenues and Expenses

Thanksgiving Celebrations

On Thursday, the Fourteenth Thanksgiving Celebration of the United and Reformed Presbyterian Church Sabbath Schools was held at the Second U. P. Church Sixth Avenue and the attendence of scholars and teachers was larger than ever before, after prayer by Rev. John S. Sands of the Eighth U. P. Church. The following programme was observed: Address to Children by Rev. J. Withershon, of Allegheny; Reading of Scripture (Psalm 66), by Rev. S. R. Frazier, of the Third U. S. Church; Address to Parents, by Rev. John Galley; address to Readers by Rev. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., of Allegheny; address to Children by Rev. John G. Brown, D. D., of the Wylie avenue school for mutes. The exercises were interspersed with music and the addresses were of a very interesting character, and were listened to with marked attention. The closing prayer was made by Rev. S. B. Reed, of the 5th U. P. Church.

Daring Burglary at Wooster.

Early Tuesday morning last, the wife of Mr. James Mullins, of Wooster, was awakened by a noise in the room, and by the dim light discovered a man rummaging the bureau drawers, and appropriating jewelry and other property. She remained quiet, as her husband was sound asleep. After the thief departed, she aroused Mr. Mullins. It was then discovered that two men had entered the house through a window, as a quantity of jewelry, some money, and two gold watches had been stolen. Policemen were notified, and with the aid of Mr. Mullins and his two sons, the thieves were tracked in the snow, in different directions. One of the thieves was found soon after, and secured. The other was not overhauled until six o'clock, three hours after the pursuit commenced. They gave their names as John Brixer and Frank Willis. The latter was arrested just as he was about to go aboard a passenger train, and said he wanted to go to Pittsburgh. He was identified by Mrs. Mullins as the person she saw in her room. Most of the stolen goods were recovered. The same night the house of Dr. Wilson had been entered by the same parties, but they only succeeded in securing here a breastpin and a small sum of money. The parties were held for trial.

The Water Bonds.

The Finance Committee of the City Councils has held daily sessions since the announcement in councils that over $500,000 of the water bonds and money were "locked up in the suspended Nation Trust Company, where it had been placed without authority. At the session on Thursday the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the Chairman of the Finance Committee, John McCune, and the City Solicitor be instructed and empowered to engage legal counsel, if necessary, and to adopt such measures and institute such legal proceedings as will ensure the speedy recovery or security of all money and bonds belonging to the city, and now in the Nation Trust Company, and report progress at the next meeting of the Finance Committee.

Mr. Lauffman, of the Water Commission, who was in Philadelphia looking after the bonds which had been sent to Jamison & Co., returned, they claimed that they were in doubt as to the cash account.

Yesterday a sub-committee, only, met and examined into the records of the Controller's office, after which a consultation with the bank officials was held, the result of which is not given us.

It may be stated as showing still further the danger of a total loss to the city that the bank officers have found out that about $150,000 worth of negotiable paper is missing.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Review by the Commission—A Fine Showing—The Men and Apparatus.

The review of the Fire Department on Thanksgiving day, Thursday, by the Board of Fire Commissioners, was the interesting feature of the season, and was witnessed by a large concourse of people. The companies under orders of the Chief Engineer, William J. White, assembled with their apparatus and horses, on Liberty street, extending from Ninth street west, and facing South, the apparatus being backed up to the north curb stone. At half past two o'clock, the members of the Commission with President George W. Wilson at their head, arrived upon the ground, and in connection with Ex-President Henry Hays inspected the companies, the men standing in line in front of their teams, dressed in their handsome blue suits, and wearing white gloves. The elegant engines and hose carriages made a beautiful appearance, all showing the care and attention of the men. The horses, too, attracted great attention and pleased everybody.

After the inspection had been concluded the department was formed in line under the direction of Chief Engineer White and Assistant Hamill, and moving along Liberty to Market, to Fifth Avenue and on Smithfield passed in review before members of the City Councils, who had assembled at Municipal Hall. The column moved in the following order:

Eagle, No. 1, engine and hose-carriage.

Niagara, No. 2, steamer and hose-carriage.

Duquesne, No. 3, steamer and hose-carriage.

Relief, No. 4, steamer and hose-carriage.

William Phillips, No. 5, steamer and hose-carriage.

Henry Hays, No. 6, steamer and hose-carriage.

Harry W. Oliver, hook and ladder truck.

Hose Company No. 1.

Independence No. 7, steamer and hose-carriage.

Lawrence Company No. 10, engine and hose-carriage.

J. McC. Creighton, No. 8, engine and hose.

Mechanics, engine and hose-carriage (South Side.)

Walton, engine and hose-carriage (South Side.)

Hook and Ladder Truck Company C, reserve steam fire engine.

Fuel Wagon paid Department.

Fire Alarm Telegraph Repair Wagon.

The department embraces 103 active firemen, in addition to the Chief Engineer and Assistant, the Superintendent of the Fire Alarm Telegraph and four Assistants and the Secretary of the Commission, making one hundred and eleven in the aggregate. Of this number one hundred and three were in line. There were also forty-three horses belonging to the department, and the Chief reports that the companies are provided with twenty-four thousand feet of hose, which is said to be the best ever manufactured.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

West Pittsburgh District Conference.

The third session of this body commenced in the Methodist Episcopal church, at Washington, Pa., Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. S. F. Minor, Presiding Elder, in the chair, who opened the proceedings with an interesting address, in which he heartily welcomed the members of the Conference to the place, and gave a brief, but glowing and interesting sketch of the condition of the work in his district. He stated the conversions at the different appointments for the past year numbered one thousand, and this year the prospects were highly encouraging. Rev. L. H. Baker was elected Secretary, and Rev. J. E. Wright, Assistant Secretary. Resolutions were adopted appointing a Nominating Committee; that candidates for license to preach, for orders, and recommendations to the Traveling Connection, shall be examined in doctrine and discipline by the Conference, followed by reports from the charges relative to their temporal and spiritual condition. The Standing Committees were as follows: Plan of Appointments of Local Preachers, Revs. N. G. Miller, T. Storer and P. Plummer, and on examination of candidates to preach, recommendation to Annual Conferences to travel and for orders, Revs. S. F. Minor, H. C. Beacom, R. T. Miller.

In the evening a grand Sunday School meeting was held, Rev. Dr. T. Storer presiding. Opening services by Rev. N. B. Stewart. Rev. R. T. Miller, of the South Side, delivered a capital and instructive address, showing the benefits of a thorough Bible education, which he argued surpassed every other kind of knowledge, and was in advance of all classes of human thought, however superior it might be in the eyes of the world. Rev. Joseph Gledhill of Georgetown, Pa., followed with a speech admirably adapted to the occasion, in which he outlined the various elements of character expressed in the words "How to be Good," and gave several happy illustrations. The admirable singing of the choir added much to the interest of the occasion. Closed with the benediction by Rev. Dr. J. J. Bronson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Wednesday morning, the reports of the temporal and spiritual condition of the churches in the district from the pastor and lay members, all of which was favorable, was taken up immediately after the usual opening exercises, followed by reports from local preachers. The following were examined, character passed and licenses renewed: W. Marshall, G. Archibald, P. Plummer, J. Pelly, E. Hunter, J. Mills, E. E. Holmes, D. R. Evans, J. Dermitt, W. H. Kincaid, J. S. Shaffer, ordained local ministers, were examined and character passed. The character and license of the following Exhorters were passed and renewed: J. Hamlin, S. W. Hay, J. Adams, J. Linduff, C. Todd. Rev. E. J. Smith, of Clarksville, Pa., read an excellent essay on "The importance of pastoral visitation." The advantages he claimed were two-fold—to impart religious instruction, converse upon matters of a spiritual character and for social purposes on the one hand, and on the other by mingling in the families of the church the pastor could learn the real condition of the members thereof, and thus regulate his pulpit instructions. During the reading of the essay the chair was occupied by Rev. C. H. Edwards, of Peter's Creek. Benediction by Rev. W. Marshall.

Afternoon session, Rev. Dr. S. F. Minor in the chair. Opening prayer by Rev. J. W. Hough. Immediately thereafter, Rev. M. M. Sweeney, New Florence, Pennsylvania, read an admirable paper on the "Duty of Parents to the Sunday School." It was shown that the duty of parents was imperative to educate children in religious matters, and that the Sunday-school was a valuable source of instruction to aid in all that pertained to these things. After some reports from churches, the examination of candidates for licenses to preach took place, and Edward M. Taylor and John W. Hough were licensed to preach, and afterwards recommended to the Annual Conference, as suitable persons to travel. They passed a rigid and acceptable examination before the Conference. The former, we believe, is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College, and the latter is now Principal of the High School and Superintendent of the Public-schools of Wellsburg, W. Va.

Rev. N. G. Miller, of Mansfield, Pa., then read an essay entitled, "The importance and best means of securing liberal benevolent collections in the church." It was an admirable paper, in which the question of serving the church was presented as an act of growth; the lack of securing blessings was the result of an insufficient ministry and parsimonous membership, and in the use of means for successful money raising. Failure to succeed arose because ministers do not estimate the duty to take all the collections, and the people are indifferent, and those in office become indifferent and neglect to teach the young. The paper, in brief, sketched the difficulties and remedies of this work.

Rev. Dr. Hays, President of Washington and Jefferson College was introduced and briefly addressed the Conference, at the close of which he cordially invited the members of the Conference to attend his annual reception Thanksgiving night. A resolution was adopted subsequently thanking him for his kind invitation. The doctor was elected honary member and invited to parcipitate. Following the speech an essay was read by W. Kincaid, of Pittsburgh, on "The benefits to be derived from the introduction of the District Conference into our church polity." The essay opened with a brief history of the organization of district conferences, followed with a summary of the benefits derived, namely, combining the features of the ministerial association, Sunday School Convention and District stewards visiting; defining the word of the ministry and official members, that communities were benefited by its sessions; cultured and developement of the mind of ministers; members of the church receive knowledge and instruction in doctrine; discipline, social benefits, etc.

Rev. R. T. Miller followed with an able essay on "Preaching demanded by the Times." It would be difficult to sketch this admirable paper and we give a brief synopsis. It opened with a definition of the preaching required, which is the exaltation, dissemination and enforcement of the truth of the Holy Scripture by men called of God and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. The preacher must maintain that the Gospel is in advance of everything; defend the inspiration of the Bible; be embued with the conviction that every word "proceedeth out of the mouth of God"; that no degree of intelectual acquirements renders the Gospel unsuited to him; that the pulpit should not be depreciated to extol the press; careless and crude authorship deprecated; the errors of the present age the reproduction of old errors; warning against Unitarian tendencies; the need of Christianity to be infused into new books to live and be read; a minister must be a reformer and must seek to elevate man; the motives of the Bible must be brought to bear upon the people; closing with a vivid review of these latter days. At the close of all these essays, remarks generally followed from the members of the Conference.

The Committee on Local Preaching provided for the supply of six appointments, besides those of the Pittsburgh City Mission work. Mansfield, Pa., was selected as the next place of meeting, and a committee was appointed to arrange for same. Bev. E. R. Jones of Ames' Church of this city was elected treasurer. Closed with benediction by Rev. C. H. Edwards.

Wednesday night and closing exercise, partly occupied with a sacramental service and love feast, under the direction of Rev. N. G. Miller. Resolutions adopted by a unanimous standing vote hospitality, use of church, local committee, pastor, president and secretaries. Also, the following was adopted:

Believing that we should at all times and occasions seek to promote the circulation of our own paper, The Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, and regarding it as a valuable aid to advance the cause of Christ and Methodism, therefore,

Resolved, That we will do all in our power to increase its circulation to full twenty thousand copies, and endeavor to furnish our quoto necessary to reach that number of subscribers.

The Conference then adjourned to meet next May. During the sessions of this body, the members of the local committee, Rev. Dr. S. F. Minor, P. E., Rev. H. E. Beacom, pastor of the church, and S. Hazlett, Esq., Banker, were unceasing in their attentions to the members. The hospitality of them, and others, was of the most generous type. Dr. Minor, the Chairman, presided with his usual urbanity and efficient manners, and the Secretaries were unremitting in their work. Rev. H. C. Beacom, the pastor, is closing his ministerial term, and will be appointed to a new church. From the encomiums of praise awarded him, the church that secures him as pastor next year will be fortunate. The same fact may be said of Rev. R. T. Miller, Rev. J. Gledhill and Rev. C. H. Edwards, all serving their last year, and will be appointed to other churches next March.

Among the lay members of the Conference present from this city were, Mr. Thomas P. Hershburger, Main street (Temperanceville), W. J. Jackson, Esq., Superintendent of the Liberty street M. E. Sunday School, and T. C. Perniver of the firm of E. Edwrrds & Co. Market street.

The Manchester, N. H., print works will start again on Monday, when they will run eight hours a day, and four days out of the six of a week. This corporation is curtailing expenses considerably, and the salaries of its officers are affected as well as the wages of the operatives.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

Eastman's System of Calisthenic Culture.

It may safely be assumed that the more intelligent and progressive educators of the present day not only recognize the importance of physical training, but urge its application as essential to a perfect bodily development. The intimate relationship between body and mind has been so thoroughly established, that no one questions it. It is quite as essential, therefore, to develop man's physical nature, as it is to draw out his mental qualifications and powers. Hence it is that physical culture is now generally regarded as an essential part of the education of our youth. Calisthenics and light gymnastics have come into general favor, and in all well arranged schools more or less attention is given to the subject of muscular training. Various appliances and devices have been brought before the public, for the purpose of aiding in this important branch; and the willingness of educators to test them, and the eagerness with which pupils adapt them to their wants, alike prove their utility. Physical education is both dignified and desirable, and too much care or skill cannot be exercised in perfecting the means for its accomplishment. There have doubtless been serious mistakes made in this matter, but experience and observation are gradually correcting them. Many of the so-called gymnastic appliances have been found not only not beneficial, but positively and unmistakably injurious. Young men who have grown up in schools and colleges, and who have undergone severe mental labor, without having had the slightest attention paid to their physical condition, have been utterly wrecked in health by entering upon a severe system of bodily exercise in the gymnasium. It is a grave error to suppose that what has been lost by years of neglect or inactivity can be supplied by imposing upon the muscular system, during a few hours of the evening, herculean tasks. The tendency of such exercise is to destroy, rather than build up. Muscular development, in its proper sense, is a slow process. It ought to be begun in youth, but it may be advantageously employed, if the proper means are used, at any stage of life. The essential point is to avoid excesses; and that appliance which renders over-exertion impossible, and adapts itself to the wants of all, no matter what may be their age or the extent of their muscular power, will prove itself a desideratum. Such, we think, is now being offered to the public of this city by Messrs. Wieting and Dayton, of New York, who represent Eastman's System of Calisthenic Culture, and whose appliance is known as the "Calisthenic Master." This device is, like all others of great and general utility, exceedingly simple, cheap and durable. It consists of two metal frames, not unlike small, light stirrups, which are coupled together by gum bands. These frames are clasped in the hands, and by changing the positions, every muscle of the arms, chest and back can be brought into active play. The force to be exerted in pulling upon the frames, will correspond to the resisting power of the elastic bands. These bands are of different degrees of power, and can be adjusted so as to suit the strength of the weakest boy or girl, or of the most robust woman or man. The advantage of this appliance over clubs, dumb-bells, etc., are so apparent to the commonest apprehension, that we need scarcely stop to point them out. A dumb bell, for instance, of a given weight, can only be handled beneficially by some one with strength enough to easily overcome its resistance. One not having sufficient power to that end, is injured in attempting to handle such a weight. The "Calisthenic Master," however, like a spring balance, will always yield to the force exerted against it, and the muscles can never be jarred or strained by tugging at an unyielding mass of dead weight. One pair of frames, with a suitable set of bands, will be sufficient for an entire family, and will last a lifetime. The frames do not weigh over half a pound, and are very neatly finished—silver-plated, japanned, or plain, as the purchaser may desire. The gentlemen named have been in this city for several days, and wherever they have introduced their appliance they have met with the fullest encouragement and the most unqualified approval. The decvice has been carefully examined by leading physicians, and pronounced superior to all others for a proper and healthful development of the muscular system. It is also indorsed and recommended by Mr. Luckey, Superintendent of City Schools, and many other prominent educators. Messrs. Wieting and Dayton will call upon such of our institutions, public and private, as have not yet been visited, and will give all an opportunity to examine their appliance, and avail themselves of its advantages. It ought to be in the hands of every man and woman, boy and girl, lacking in physical development; and in that case it should be of almost universal application.

THE CONSPIRACY.

Hearing Before Alderman Strain In the Case of the Union Printers—The Defendants Held for Trial.

Our readers are familiar with the circumstances of the recent "strike" of "Union" printers by which an attempt was made to prevent the issue of several of the morning and evening dailies of this city, under the arbitrary unjust and, evidently unlawful combination of compositors employed thereon. The business managers and proprietors thus menaced, as we have already reported, prosecuted the striking compositors for conspiracy and in accordance with the announcement made, a hearing in the several cases was had before Alderman John A. Strain, yesterday afternoon.

A large number of the defendants were on hand and were represented by Thos. M. Marshall and George W. DeCamp, Esq's., while Messrs. A. M. Brown and Fred. M. Magee Esq's., appeared for the Commonwealth.

Messrs. Thomas MacConnell, Jr., business manager of the Evening Telegraph; Alex. W. Rook, one of the proprietors of the Daily Dispatch, and M. F. Egan, business manager of the COMMERCIAL, were examined in the order named. Their testimony showed that on Thursday, the 20th inst., the employees, defendants, quit the several offices named without just cause, and for the reason given that another office had employed new hands not in the "Union" of which the defendants where members. They testified further that at the time stated the said newspapers, were willing, and so stated, to pay the price demanded for composition.

The Pressman of the Dispatch, Mr. Wm. Wiseman, testified that some of the boys employed by him had reported that they had been importunped by the strikers to leave work and aid them (the defendants) in their endeavor to controll the press. Two of the boys, or young men, spoken of were examined and testified that appeals had been made to them to quit work.

After the testimony had been heard, Mr. DeCamp addressed the Alderman, and claimed that the testimony elicited did not warrant the holding the defendant, to answer.

Major A. M. Brown followed in behalf of the prosecution in an able and logical speech and defined the meaning of conspiracy under the statute. He held that the acts of the defendants as shown by undoubted evidence, exhibited an intention and endeavor to interfere unlawfully with the business of the prosecutors and those they represented, and that the acts were calculated likely, to damage and injure the business aforesaid.

After the speeches of counsel, Alderman Strain, having examined the statutes bearing upon the case, delivered the following able opinion, which was listened to with the greatest attention:

In reference to these informations, made on oath by the owners and business managers of the different newspapers, to-wit: The Dispatch, Evening Telegraph and Pittsburgh COMMERCIAL, wherein it is alleged that the defendants did conspire, confederate and agree together for an unlawful purpose, and for the farther purpose of depressing and annoying the prosecutors and the owners and proprietors of the newspapers which they own and represent; and it is further alleged that the defendants did agree and conspire, and did hinder and threaten and prevent others from working on the papers already named.

It has been held that the offense of conspiracy, according to all the authorities, consists not in the accomplishment of an unlawful or injurious purpose, nor in any one act moving towards that purpose, but in the actual concert and agreement of two or more persons to effect something, which being so concerted and agreed, that law regards as the object of an indictable conspiracy.

"The gist of a conspiracy is the unlawful confederacy to do an unlawful act, or a lawful act for an unlawful purpose. And the offense is complete when the confederacy is made.

"I hold, a combination is a conspiracy in law, whenever the act done has a tendency to prejudice the public, or oppress individuals by unjustly subjecting them to the power of the confederates and giving effect to the purposes of the latter, whether of extortion or mischief. Every association is criminal whose object is to raise or depress the price of labor beyond what it would bring if it were left without artificial excitement. All who accede to a conspiracy after it is formed and while it is in execution, and all who, with knowledge of the facts, concur in the plans originally formed, and aid in executing them, are fellow-conspirators under the law.

"There is, in my judgment, testimony and facts sufficient to warrant me in holding the defendants to answer the charge preferred against them, which I do in the sum of $700 each for their appearance at the December term."

The defendants entered into recognizance in accordance with the above decision, and were discharged.

BEAVER COLLEGE.

The Thanksgiving Entertainment.

The residents of the staid-community of Beaver were all agog on account of the delightful entertainment in the Beaver College and Musical Institute, on Thursday evening. The elegant and spacious new College Hall was crowded with the elite of that place and contiguous towns. The exercises opened with a duet by Misses Stiles and Davidson, after which the following programme was observed: Essay by Miss Cross; piano-solo, Miss Brannum; song, "Danube River," by class; recitation, Miss McCreary; piano-solo, Miss Knox; vocal solo, Miss Beacom; essay, Miss King; piano-solo, Miss Reis; Anthem, recitation, Miss Patterson; piano-solo, Miss Slemmens; vocal trio, Misses Patterson, Morton and Howell; essay, "Paper," Miss Lynch; violin solo, Prof. Johannessen; vocal solo, Miss Young; piano solo, Prof. Johannessen.

Without making any invidious distinctions in the different performances it was evident to any one who had been present on previous occasions at this institution, though for many years it has enjoyed a high reputation for its musical facilities, that there was evidence of superior culture and more artistic finish in the vocal and instrumental music. Two or three of the young ladies gave evidence of a high order of musical talent, and the encores were the indication of the mind of the audience. Mrs. Dr. Taylor, wife of the President, an accomplished singer, and who has charge of the vocal classes, sung finely once or twice with the class. Prof. Johannessan, in charge of the instrumental music, is a rare acquisition and is an accomplished violinist and pianist. Madame Johannessen, his wife, a native of Paris, is teacher of French in the College.

A large and powerful Organ has just been built by Messrs Hook & Hastings, of Boston, at an expense of about fifteen hundred dollars. We understand it will soon be ready for use, and that it will be tried for the first time at a Concert, the 11th of December. Mr. Charles C. Mellor, of this city, an organist of rare skill, and his accomplished wife, a superior vocalist, are to assist on that occasion. The concert closes the Fall session. After a short vacation, including the holidays, the Winter session will open. The erection of this elegant Organ, in addition to other musical instruments places this institution equal to the best in the country, to supply a first-class musical education. In fact, very few are so well provided with such facilities. With the large and elegant new buildings, and superior outfit of instruments to illustrate the sciences, and every other thing needful for College instruction, we anticipate the College will have a brilliant future. Rev. Dr. R. T. Taylor, the President, who has so long and so ably conducted this institution, may well be proud of the eminence the institution has reached under his judicious administration. The generous and noble benefactions of the Hon. John F. Dravo, and other friends, have done much toward providing its superior facilities for educational purposes. Judge Agnew of the Supreme Court of this State is the President of the Board of Trustees, and Mr. Dravo is the Vice-President. Among the recently elected Trustees is Hon. M. S. Quay, Secretary of our Commonwealth.

THE THIRTY-SEVENTH WARD.

Application for An Injunction to Restrain Its Admission As a Part of the City.

City Attorney Bigelow was yesterday served with a notice, through Messrs. Marshall Acheson and Schoyer, counsel for James Kelly that an application would be made to the District Court, this morning, at nine o'clock, for a preliminary injunction to restrain the City Councils from exercising control over the recently annexed territory known as the Thirty-seventh Ward, and to enjoin the election board, appointed by an ordinance of councils, from holding an election, on Tuesday next, for members of councils and other officers. The complaint of Mr. Kelly sets forth, in substance, that the petition presented to councils for the annexation of a portion of Wilkins township, did not contain the names of three-fifths of the taxable inhabitants, as required by law, and that the passage of the ordinance annexing the same was collusive and fraudulent. Alleging that he has large property interests involved, and that he has no remedy at law, Mr. Kelly prays the court to grant a preliminary injunction on the ground and for the purpose stated, and on final hearing, to perpetually enjoin the city councils from exercising the threatened control over the territory claimed to be annexed.

The complaint is supported by several affidavits; but as the papers had not been filed, we had no access to them. It is presumed that the Court will, this morning, fix a day for hearing the argument on the motion. But one day remains, (after to-day,) in which to act, if the Court is to be seriously asked to restrain the election, which will take place, in pursuance of law, on Tuesday next. This territory was admitted, by ordinance, in May last, six months ago, and the ordinance appointing the election board and fixing the place of election was adopted five or six weeks since, so that Mr. Kelly has not made any very great haste in bringing his case to the attention of the Court. The whole question was very fully considered in Councils, before two Committees, each of whom reported in favor of the annexation, after giving both sides a full hearing—the witnesses having been examined under oath. Mr. Kelly was present, both in person and by counsel, at these hearings, and if he had any just ground of complaint he had ample time to apply to the Court to restrain the Councils from passing the ordinance.

BAPTISTS IN THANKSGIVING.

Sermon by Dr. Pearson.

The Sandusky Street Baptist Church, Allegheny, was filled with representatives of the various Baptist Churches at a union service, Wednesday, when Rev. Dr. Pearson, pastor of the Fourth Avenue Church, preached. He took for his text Neh. viii, 9-10, "Be not sorry, but eat the fat, drink the sweet, and send to them for whom nothing has been provided, for the joy of the Lord is your strength." It was regarded by the large congregation as a discourse remarkably fresh and eloquent, and exceedingly appropriate to the times. He first declared that Thanksgiving joy was the natural result of faith in God. The predominant feature in God's dealing with man was mercy, and the predominant feature in man's worship of God was to be thankfulness. He dwelt upon the subjective feeling and the outward expression. Religion was not a sorrowful religion, but a religion of consolation. In what faith in Christ took away and by what it imparted it was fitted to produce abiding joy. The discussion of this line of thought was marked by great felicity of language and conception. He went on to show that the emotions of gratitude were awakened by proper objects; that there was an education of the heart as well as of the intellect; and that it was an imperative christian duty to cultivate the joy of believing.

Having laid this basis in doctrine and precept, he took up his third head. "Thanksgiving joy is perpetuated and Intensified by what providence accomplished and prophecy anticipated." Recent occurrences came in for discussion under, first, accomplished faith of the year; second, the purifying tribulations of the period; third, the providential tendencies of the age. Many points were put so as to rouse the utmost euthusiasm. Under the last head, be presented steadfast christian joy as the noblest attitude of man, the glory of the believer and the urgent need of the age. The Baptist churches of this city never had a better Thanksgiving service, nor even one so largely attended. A generous contribution was taken for the poor. Rev. B. F. Woodburn, Rev. J. S. Hutson, and Rev. J. E. Craig, took the appropriate devotional services.

THE NEW CONSTITUTION.

Rumored Effort to Restrain the Election.

It is stated that a number of the more prominent members of the bar of Allegheny county, have been in consultation in regard to preparing a bill in equity to be presented to the Court, asking for an injunction to restrain the election officers from holding an election under the ordinance of the Constitutional Convention, on the ground that the convention was illegally convened; that the constitution is itself void, and that the method of its submission to the people is clearly unconstitutional. The bill has not yet taken verbal shape, but it will be drawn up in a few days.

CITY MATTERS IN BRIEF.

HON. SCHUYLER COLFAX, of Indiana, passed through the city, yesterday, on his way to Washington.

THE MAN T. A. Field, arrested for forgery and false pretences in the procuring and use of railroad passes, had a hearing before Alderman Taylor, and was committed to jail for trial.

OAKLAND people and those living beyond Soho will be glad to learn that at the latter place, travel can be resumed after to-day. In a few days the Oakland street cars will be running to Oakland.

THERE will be a meeting of the Coal Exchange at their rooms on Water street this afternoon, November 29th, at one and a half o'clock. Members are urged to attend as business of importance will be transacted.

THE Evangelical Ministerial Association of Pittsburgh, Allegheny and vicinity, will hold its regular monthly meeting in the Lecture Room of the First Presbyterian church, Wood street, on Monday afternoon at half past two o'clock.

REV. F. A. NOBLE, D.D., pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Sixth Avenue, preached a most excellent and eloquent sermon on Thanksgiving morning. Good sermons are the rule, however, and not the exception, in the Third Church.

AT a meeting held in the church on Wednesday evening last, the Presbyterian congregation of Bellefield, Fourteenth Ward, resolved unanimously to extend a call to Rev. W. J. Holland, Princeton, New Jersey, to become their pastor. The formal election will no doubt be held in a short time.

WILLIAM ASHTON, a resident of New Castle, while intoxicated, fell down the stairway leading from the entrance to the Opera House to the biliard room below, last evening, and was considerably bruised. He was carried to the Central Station house, where Dr. McCoy, city physician, dressed his wounds.

SHORTLY before eleven o'clock yesterday morning, Mr. Richard Pemberton, second mate of the steamer Granite State, was severely injured by being struck by a rudder which was being placed in position. Mr. Pemberton was injured in the spine and leg, and will be incapacitated from business for some time.

MISS POTTER spent yesterday at the Hiland public school, giving instruction to the pupils in the art of drawing. All were delighted with her, and at the close of her visit the teachers invited her to a sumptuous repast, which was heartily enjoyed by all. A number of directors and friends of the school were present.

THOMAS FORAN, a well-known "boss" bricklayer, had a frightful fall on Thanksgiving day, at the new German Savings Bank Building, now being erected at Wood Street and Diamond Alley. Mr. Foran stepped upon the elevator to descend, when it gave way, and he was participated a distance of about fifty feet. He was taken to his home on the hill, and attended by Dr. Shaw. Astonishing to relate, Mr. F. was not seriously injured.

WM. C. SMYTHE, Esq., of the Allegheny Mail, will deliver a lecture entitled "Across the Atlantic," at Excelsior Hall, on Monday evening next, December 1, for the benefit of the Plymouth Congregational Church, Allegheny City. The shrewd insight and versatile ability of Mr. Smythe constitute a sufficient guarantee that his subject, which is mainly a piquant record of personal experience and observations during a trip to Europe, will be treated in the freshest and most interesting manner imaginable.

THE GOLDEN IDOL;

OR,

The Enchanted Tree.

CHAPTER I.

THE GIRL'S DESPAIR.

Upon a lonely shore of Tonga-taboo harbor, in the island of Tonga-taboo, two persons sat hidden in a dim recess of palms.

They were father and daughter.

The former was a plain, simple clergyman of middle age.

The latter was a charming girl of seventeen years, scarcely more remarkable for her loveliness than for her sterling good sense and a worldly wisdom far in advance of her years.

As to the wife and mother of this couple she had long been sleeping her last sleep in one of the lonely nooks of this far Pacific island.

Ten years had passed since Mr. Fortescue had come to the shores of this lovely harbor, with the intention of passing his days in the labor of converting to Christianity their pagan idolators; but the good missionary had, in some unintentional way, fallen under the displeasure of the ruler of the island, and was now being hunted for his life.

"I am so tired, father," panted the girl, as she clasped her hand tightly to her heart.

"We ought not to have run so fast," responded Mr. Fortescue. "But I am sure the savages were near us."

"Hush! here they are!" breathed the girl.

A rush of footsteps was heard, and a moment later several savages came flying past, rending the air with their cries.

"They think we have gone in that direction," whispered the missionary. "Oh, if they only knew how near we are still to the settlement!"

"Will they not soon be back this way, father?" asked Miss Fortescue.

"I dare say they will, Ellie. Ah! here comes another band of them."

A dozen armed warriors traversed the sandy beach immediately in front of the hiding-place of the couple.

"How terrible they are! how lost to all pity!"

"Alas! for the poor results of all my toils!" sighed Mr. Fortescue. "To see these savage pursurers, and hear their yells, one would little imagine the sacrifices we have made on their account. All the benefits they have received from us are forgotten. They are determined to kill us if they can find us."

At this point Ellie started violently, half arising to her feet.

"Oh, look father!" she cried.

This was all she could say, but she pointed far away in the direction from which the fugitives had come.

"It is hard to see our home perishing," sighed the daughter. "What demons they are."

She started again, even more violently than before—this time at the barking of a dog within ten feet of her.

"The cur will certainly betray us!" cried the missionary, springing to his feet.

"He has betrayed us already," returned Ellie. "See! they are coming."

In the last moment at his residence, Mr. Fortescue had seized an old sword he chanced to have upon his premises, and he thanked heaven for the service this weapon now rendered him, he being able to cleave the dog in twain with a single desperate blow.

"Had we better not plunge into the interior, father?" asked Ellie.

"I think not. It is there they are looking for us. They are beating up every bush, and—Yes! they are certainly coming nearer to us. See! they have torches! Oh, this is horrible!"

"Perhaps we had better throw ourselves into a boat, and trust ourselves to the wind and waves."

"I would have done so darling, but for the roughness of the sea."

"It's all up with our halt here," said the missionary, turning back. "We must fly. The dog was heard, and the savages are hastening in this direction."

Breaking from their covert, hand in hand, the father and daughter ran along the beach and gained a temporary shelter behind a small legde of rocks which jutted out into the sea in the shape of a small promontory.

"If we only had a boat now!" sighed the father, "possibly we could get off in it."

Ere Ellie could reply a solitary savage came bounding from the bushes, brandishing his war-club.

"Alas, alas!" mourned Mr. Forteqcue.

He had realized only too well the imminence of the peril—the utter futility of all his efforts at escape—but he met the foremost savage with the strength of desperation, cleaving him in twain nearly as cleverly as he had dispatched the dog which had discovered the whereabouts of the couple; but then came the sharp, loud report of a musket—and the good missionary lay weltering in his blood, with a bullet through his vitals.

"I am hit!" he cried. "I cannot go on."

"Not even to the boat, father?"

"Alas, it is too late!" faltered the dying missionary, as everything reeled around him. "To Thee, O God, I commend her!"

These were the last words of the devoted missionary. As he uttered them, he tumbled into the boat he had succeeded with his last desperate efforts in reaching, and in that same instant his senses left him forever.

"Off, demons!" cried Ellie, still wielding her sword with the strength of despair.

By the last desperate effort of her exhausted powers the brave girl succeeded in pushing off the boat and in breaking clear of the pursuers with it.

A FIENDISH REVENGE.

At the same hour when the preceding events were occurring, a large top-sail schooner was standing on and off the Eastern Passage of Tonga-taboo harbor, waiting to enter the port and come to anchor.

Upon the stern of this schooner, leaning against the bulwarks, stood a fresh-looking and rosy-faced youth of eighteen or nineteen years, who was looking dreamily through the night in the direction of the distant land. And near this youth stood the skipper of the schooner, whose gaze had long been fixed in the same direction.

"Did I understand you to say, Denny Breeze, that you expect to find old acquaintances upon this island?" asked the commander, breaking a long and attentive silence.

"Yes, Captain Morrison," replied Denny Breeze, drawing nearer to his commander, so as to speak with more of the freedom of confidence. "I refer to the Reverend Mr. Fortescue, and his daughter."

"They are old acquaintances, then?"

"Yes, sir. They used to live in the village where I was born, and their house was always to me like a second home—the only home I have had, in fact, since the death of my mother."

"And the strange disappearance of your father, you should have added," said Captain Morrison, gravely, as he patted the youth affectionately upon the shoulder. "It is the strangest thing in creation whatever became of your father, boy. And yet, in another sense, there was nothing strange about it; it was simply another case of 'Lost at sea!' How many a life has ended to all earthly ken with that brief announcement. But what is it that is going on ashore to the west'ard of us?" he added, as a vast blaze illuminated the horizon in that quarter. "Looks like a house afire."

"Yes, sir; it does," assented Denny.

"And it is a house afire," affirmed Captain Morrison, after a long look through his glass. "And its curious that none of the savages who are running about make the least effort to put it out. And now that I look again, it seems to me that the burning house is exactly in the direction of the one Mr. Fortescue occupied."

Denny Breeze turned pale at this suggestion.

"Oh, I hope not, sir!" he exclaimed.

"It would be horrible if Ellie Fortescue should be in such trouble," said Denny, after a long look shoreward. "There seems to be a great deal of jumping and dancing in the neighborhood of that fire, and not a soul doing anything as I can see towards putting it out."

"Guess I'll go below now and get a bit of sleep, Mr. Buncle," said Capt. Morrison to his secod mate. "Call me if anything happens."

And with this the commander withdrew.

He had scarcely gone when Mr. Buncle, the second mate, approached one of the seamen under his charge, and said:

"Now is your chance, Bill; if you'll call Tom, and the rest for'ard, we'll soon arrive at some conclusion. My opinion is that we had better give the old tub the slip to-night.

"But the cap'n thinks as how the savages may be at this blessed minute a killing of the missionaries on the island," remonstrated Bill, energetically.

"I think we had better see Tom and the rest, and make our escape immediately in the long boat while the old man is snoozing."

"Good! Let's move at once."

Half hidden by sundry hamper at the foot of the main-shrouds, Denny Breeze had listened to every word of the conversation.

"A general desertion, eh? said Denny to himself, as he saw the perfidious second-mate becoming the center of a little knot of eager men forward, "This thing won't work, my fine fellows."

He lost no time in entering the cabin and proceeding directly to the commander's stateroom. The old sea-dog was just in the act of "turning in."

"Why, what ails you, Denny?" he cried. "You are pale."

"Perhaps I have reason to be. Mr. Buncle and a good share of the men are hatching up a plot to leave the sconer in the long-boat and make the island!"

"What!—to-night?"

"Yes, sir—to-night. 'Now is our time,' they say, 'while the old man is sleeping!'"

The commander slipped noiselessly from the cabin, and soon his voice was heard upon the forecastle. The truth was, he had waited unseen and silent until the conspirators were about to resort to the measure of getting out the long-boat, and then he had fallen upon them with all the stern authority of his position and the still sterner authority of his character.

A few minutes only the din lasted, and then the commander slipped back to the cabin.

"I've fixed them," he muttered, as he rubbed his hands together. "I waited till they were getting out the boat, and then I went for them. You can imagine how Buncle is cut up. Mr. Skill is now in charge of things. Here, Steward!"

The steward immediately responded to the call

"Make me my usual favorite punch," added the commander, "and let us have it while it is hot."

The steward bowed understandingly, and set about obeying the order.

After remaining alone in the cabin an hour or two, musing intently upon all he had seen in the direction of the island, Denny Breeze again took his way to the deck, which seemed to him singularly dark and deserted.

The wind had freshened notably. A chopping sea had arisen, and the vessel was laboring more than she had done for several days preceding. The heavens were nearly obscured by a mist of impending rain.

"Is it you, Pete?" asked a voice, as Denny emerged from the cabin.

Pete was the colored steward.

"No, it's me—the passenger—Mr. Breeze," answered Denny.

"Oh, it's you, eh?" said the voice, which our hero now recognized as that of Mr. Buncle. "All right, sir. I thought it was Pete."

Advancing upon the deck, Denny Breeze continued to look around him, waiting for the schooner to tack forward again.

"A rough night, Mr. Breeze?" said the mate.

"Yes, sir, quite rough," he responded.

"Do you know where the cap'n is?" was the next question of Buncle.

"Abed and asleep sir."

"Bo you know how sleepy he is? But of course you don't, and so I will tell you; he is as sleepy as a good dose of medicine can make him."

"Do you mean to say he has been drugged?" asked Denny.

"That's just what I mean to say. A good dose of medicine was put in the punch Pete made just before the old man turned in."

It was easy enough for Denny to see, by this time that something wrong was taking place—that at the very least the villiany he had interrupted was gathering ahead again.

"I know not why you tell me this," said Denny, "but I know that I'll soon see for myself if you are telling me the truth."

He turned toward the cabin.

"Softly! One moment!" said Buncle, advancing nearer. "I want to speak a word further with you, young gentleman."

"Say on, then!"

"What I have to say is this," said Buncle. "Did you not tell Capt. Morrison that I, and Tom, and Bill, and some others of the crew, were about to run away in the long-boat?"

Denny was not pleased with the situation, especially as several of the intended runaways had gathered about him, but his was a soul inaccessible to fear, and he responded:

"Yes, I told Captain Morrison of your intended flight. What of it?"

"You shall soon see, my young bantam," said Buncle, with suppressed passion. "The long boat is in the water, and duly provisioned and stored and we are ready to push off in her."

"But Mr. Skill?" cried Denny, looking around excitedly. "Where is Mr. Skill?"

He referred to the executive in whose charge Capt. Morrison had left the vessel.

"Mr. Skill is bound hand and foot and gagged, in the forecastle, as are several of the men who took part with him," declared Buncle, with brutal insolence.

Denny Breeze, at these words, bounded towards the cabin, shouting:

"More villainy, Captain Morrison! Help! help!"

He had scarcely finished this cry when he found himself intercepted by several pairs of hands and numerous fingers clutching at his throat.

"Up with him boys!" was the short but fatal command of Buncle.

It was in vain that Denny, realizing the horrible intention of his enemies, essayed to defend himself—all in vain! He was lifted clear of the deck in an instant, and hurled over the bulwarks into the raging waters.

AS LUCK WOULD HAVE IT.

For an instant, Denny Breeze believed that his hour had come.

To swim, encumbered with all his clothes, in such a sea as was running, was impossible.

How, then, did Denny escape?

By the veriest accident in the world.

At the moment he was lifted from the deck, preliminiarly to his feet being thrown over the bulwarks, his feet caught in a portion the hamper to which reference has been made. One of his legs, in fact, became entangled in the coils of a sheet, in such a way as to hold him fast.

Upon reaching the water, therefore, he was by no means clear of the schooner, as his enemies supposed. On the contrary, he remained attached to the vessel by a rope more than an inch in diameter, and perceived that he was being towed gently through the water alongside, keeping pace with the schooner.

The long-boat was already in the water. The schooner had been left under such easy sail, with a view to this desertion, that her progress through the water was scarce perceptible.

"Isn't there any spoil aboard?" asked Bill Barling, who had been chosen to stand next to uncle in charge of the exoedition.

"I know there is specie aboard," said Buncle, reflectively. "But where the specie is stored is beyond my knowledge."

"Pete ought to know all about that point," suggested Marling, "since he is always in the cabin."

"Yes, and I does, boss," said Pete, with a grin of pleased importance.

"Fetch it up, then, immediately," commanded Buncle.

In five minutes more the little band of deserters had striped the schooner of its specie, plate, linen, and other valuables, with a number of nautical instruments, lanterns, etc., and had pushed clear of the vessel, standing toward the island.

Fortunately this departure took place upon the side of the schooner opposite to that from which our hero had been thrown overboard, and alongside of which he was being towed gently through the water

"They've gone!" he heard a voice exclaim, a few moments later.

"Help, there!" he called.

"Where are you?" was the response of the voice which had before spoken.

"Here—alongside—on the starboard side!" exclaimed our hero.

"Who are you?"

"Mr. Breeze—the passenger."

Sundry ejaculations of wonder succeeded, blended with the hurried trampling of feet, and then the sheet which had rendered Denny such timely service was slowly drawn in until he found himself able to find the bulwarks.

"That'll do," he called. "I'm all right now. Where is Mr. Skill?"

"Coming to himself, sir, but not yet able to move," answered Elton. He was black in the face when we released him."

"How many men are left?"

"Only four of us, excepting you and the cap'n.

"You had better take the light from your rigging," suggested Denny. "There is little danger of our falling foul of another ship in these waters, and it will be well to put it out of the power of Buncle and his gang to board us."

This suggeston was adopted.

"Let us hope that no chance will throw us into their power," said Denny, as careless as if no peril had ever assailed him. "For my part I don't care to be towed alongside by one leg again!"

"We'll stand in toward the harbor," said Capt. Morrison, who was quite himself again, with the exception of a severe headache. "Doubtless our runaways have made the island in safety. They would not mind taking the risk of a landing in the darkness in such a boat as they had."

"I see nothing of any ship in port," remarked Capt. Morrison to our hero, as they paced the deck together.

"No, sir. There certainly is none—at least within the range of our vision."

"We shall have to be very careful about our movements," said the commander.

The schooner had advanced several miles into the Passage, when Capt. Morrison became command that the dwelling which had been destroyed the previous evening, as related, was no other than that of the missionary.

"It may have been burned by accident, sir," suggested Denny, with keen glances through a glass at the distant ruins.

"It may, indeed," assented the commander, "but I fear to the contrary. I don't like the looks of things. The tawny rascals are not acting as usual. There is something wrong with them. I shall not venture a landing—unless a ship of war, or at least a stout trader, should arrive here within twenty-four hours. In fact, I'll go about immediately, and give them a wide berth until further light is thrown upon them.

He had just given the order to go about, when a cry of startled surprise arose from nearly every soul on the vessel.

"Look!" cried Denny, pointing toward one of the outlying islands which define the northern limits of the Passage. "Yonder is the long-boat."

This was indeed the case.

"She is pushing out to intercept us!" cried Capt. Morrison.

"And all the rascals are in her!" declared Mr. Skill. "This is awkward."

"The villians!" exclaimed Captain Morrison, sternly. "They have not found the natives quite so pleasant to deal with as they imagined, and now they wish to come back to the schooner."

"You will not let them come aboard, sir?" demanded Mr. Skill.

"No, sir. After what they have done, they would not hesitate a moment to kill us all and take possession of the schooner. That's probably the very course they intend to take. It only remains for us to fight them," muttered Capt. Morrison. "We may as well be getting our tools together."

The preparations for defence were scarcely completed when the long-boat was within hailing distance, continuing to advance rapidly.

"Sheer off there, you villians!" called Capt. Morrison, as he raised a musket menacingly. "You can't come back to the schooner."

"We must come back!, shouted Buncle, in return. "There's no living with the natives. They've risen upon the missionaries and strangers, killing every one of them. We have had a terrible battle with them—"

"Sheer off there, I say," interrupted Capt. Morrison, raising his musket. "You can't come aboard the schooner."

"We can and we will!", cried Buncle, with a dogged resolution that sufficiently evidenced the desperation of his circumstances. "If you are wise, Capt. Morrison you'll let us come aboard and excuse what has happened. We are sorry for our conduct of last evening; it all came of our having had too much liquor. We wish to return to duty—"

"I can put no trust in you," interrupted Capt. Morrison. "Once for all, you shall not come near us."

"Destruction!" exclaimed Buncle as he caught sight of Denny. "The youngster isn't dead after all."

Then he called to Capt. Morrison.

"It is useless for you to warn us off, Cap'n. We are certainly coming aboard, even if we have to fight you."

And with this the long-boat resumed its swift advance upon the schooner.

"And let me say just one word more," added Buncle. "We are two to your one, and for every shot that is fired upon us we shall take a horrible revenge.

A VERY WEB OF PERIL.

It was in vain that her savage enemies called to Ellie Fortescue, in the frightful circumstances in which we left her.

"The water is full of sharks!"

She little heeded, in that awful hour, this additional peril.

"Oh, father! speak to me!" she cried, sustaining the palid face of the dead missionary above the water.

The dumbness succeeding this appeal was terribly significant, as was also the very inertness of the lifeless form.

"He is dead!" she gasped.

Hovering over the edge of the boat, and heedless alike of the cries of the savages or of the missiled they were still discharging at her, the poor girl placed her hand upon the heart of the missionary.

It had indeed ceased to beat.

"And I may as well die, too!" was the cry of anguish that welled to Ellie's lips, as she capsized the nearly filled boat, and let her father's body sink in the sea, to keep it from falling into the hands of the cannibals. "Of what further use is my life, even if I could make my escape from these murderous enemies? It matters little what becomes of me now" said Ellie herself, as she swam shoreward. "They can do what they will."

The next instant she was seized by the hair of the head by the foremost of her pursuers, and dragged rudely out of the water and thrust into the bottom of a boat.

"The missionary?" cried this savage, looking eagerly around upon the surface of the water.

The girl pointed downward, with a manner sufficiently indicative of her belief that the body of her father was going down thousands of feet, to the midst of coral caves beyond all decay, beyond all life, there to await the resurrection.

The savage uttored a howl of anger and regret, which attested that the timely fears of Ellie for the remains of her father had not been unfounded.

"Never mind—you will do as well," grunted the savage, significantly.

These were the last words the unfortunate wretch ever uttered; a blow at that instant from the club of a native, who had arrived in a second boat, having knocked him overboard and left him senseless, to meet a certain death by drowning.

"You are my prize, lovely flower of a hated race!" muttered the new comer, as he transferred the girl to his own boat, leaving that of his murdered rival to drift away upon the water. You know me now, do you not? "I am Tongaroro."

Ellie recognized her captor now, and she was not displeased with the substitution of Tongaroro for the ruffian who had first seized her. For this Tongaroro was one of the leading chiefs of the islands, as is implied by his name, and one of the most intelligent, having been diligent for many years to learn all he could of Mr. Fortescue. He even spoke English quite fluently.

"I warned that dog against getting in my way," he muttered, "and let them all beware how they molest me!"

"Oh, you will not let them eat me?" cried Ellie, shuddering, her tender and dellicate nature shrinking more from that profanation than from death itself.

"No, they will not eat you," said the savage stoutly; "at least, not without my permission."

"Oh, say that they shall not eat me, in any case," pleaded Ellie.

"I do not care to say that," said the chief, slowly, shaking his head. "Somebody must be eaten in the great festival of to-morrow. Perhads some white man will come this way"

"But surely you can save me if you will."

"There is one way in which I can save you," said Tongaroro, as he continued to row quietly shorewards, "and that is for you to become my wife."

"Your wife?" and the girl shuddered.

"But that I see, is out of the question, said the chief, grimly. "And so you will probably bo eaten to-morrow."

As she reached the beach, she found herself confronted by the king of the natives, the father of Tongaroro.

"Take her away—and let her be well fed!" commanded the chief, addressing his son. "She must not be found amiss for the feast to-morrow."

Tongaroro made a gesture to the girl, leading the way toward his house, and she lost no time in following him.

This house was an average specimen of the simple constructions of the island, being little more than a thatched roof supported upon posts. It stood in a retired spot, with great trees around it, and had about it an air of uncommon neatness—a fact owing to the refined manners the sister of the young chief had acquired from the missionaries, and especially of Ellie's mother.

Here you are to stay to-night," said Tongaroro, as he ushered her into a small, close apartment at one end of the house. "If you make me any trouble, it will be the worse for you. I shall chain you fast—"

"Oh, I will not run away, I assure you! Do not chain me! It does not matter what becomes of me now—except that I cannot bear the thought of being eaten. Do not chain me!"

"I must," said Tongaroro, grimly. "I shall be away a great deal to-night, and I am afraid that Lootoo may come and carry you off. A good chain will prevent all that, and chained you must be!"

He secured around one of the girl's ankles a stout chain, which had evidently once belonged to some vessel, and then the other end of the chain was fastened as securely to one of the stout posts supporting to the roof of the dwelling.

"I will bring food and drink," he said, turning away, "and do not be foolish."

The food and drink supplied her, he took his departure, leaving her alone in the darkness.

She had not been in this place a great while, however, when the door of her prison was opened, and the grim figure of another native chief was presented indistinctly to the gaze.

"Are you Tongaroro?" she asked, in a flutter of apprehension.

"No, I am Lootoo! Hush! I have come to release you, and carry you off to the woods and to the mountains!"

"Alas! you cannot release me—even if I wished you to," sighed Ellie. "I am chained!"

"Chained!"

The new comer echoed the word in a tone of the gravest annoyance.

"Are you telling me the truth?" he demanded.

"You can feel or look for yourself."

Lootoo at first felt of the chain, and examined it. As he did so, his brow darkened fearfully. He scowled like a fiend.

"I cannot release you, if I were to work all night," he muttered. "And all will be decided against me to-morrow. But there is one thing I can do; I hate Tongaroro, and here is a chance for me to cause him a great annoyance."

"Aow?" faltered Ellie.

"I will kill you!" replied Lootoo. "Since I cannot set you free, I must kill you where you are!"

He drew forth a large knife for his purpose.

The above we publish as a specimen chapter; but the continuation of this story will be found in the N. Y. Ledger. ## THANKSGIVING IN JAIL

The Prisoners Feasted—Addresses and Music.

Through the energy and perseverance of Rev. J. Dermit, Agent of the Prison Society of Allegheny county, and the generous aid of a member of our philanthropic citizens, a substantial Thanksgiving dinner was served up in the county jail on Thursday afternoon. There are about one hundred and sixty prisoners at present under the charge of Warden Smith, most of whom enjoyed the feast which their benevolent friends supplied. The arrangements were carried out without any confusion under the direction of the Warden and the "guests" were seated in a most orderly manner. When those who had occupied the first table had dined, Mr. Dermitt introduced one of the prisoners, who exhorted his brethren in bonds to live new lives. Rev. John Douglas, D. D., who had been pressed into service by Mr. Dermitt, then delivered an address to the prisoners. After the Doctor took his departure, several of the inmates and others made short addresses. The men and women seemed to enjoy themselves as well as they could be expected to do under the circumstances. Among those who waited at the table and made themselves generally useful were Mr. Frank Van Gorder, and his excellent lady, both of whom take a deep interest in the cause of prison discipline and reform, Miss Dermitt, Warden Smith and his aids.

Special thanks are given, by those who had the superintendance of the dinner, to Messrs. Garber and Williams, Queensware Merchants, J. B. Youngson, Confectioner, and Reymer and Brothers, Fruiterers and Confectioners, for liberal aid rendered. Miss Dermitt added not a litte to the enjoyment of the company by her vocal and instrumental performances.

We have no doubt that many of the men and women who were feasted in the county jail so sumptuously on Thanksgiving, by the liberality of our citizens, would have relished much poorer fare in the bosom of their families and among their friends.
